Gunmen, lawmen in tense vigil

By MARY NEISWENDER
and the I.P.T. City Staff

Two desperate gunmen—bent on freedom or death—played a deadly waiting game with more than 100 heavily armed sheriff's deputies late into the night Friday as they held two hostages, one with a heart ailment, waiting for someone to break the stalemate.

"I think this has gone too far," one gunman said in a running telephone interview with the Independent Press-Telegram. "I don't have any hope."

The two men, one who would identify himself only as "Ray" and the other who claimed to be 32-year-old Tom Williams of Saginaw, Mich., said they would release their hostages only if provided with a car and an escape route.

Otherwise, they said, they would die in their barricaded sanctuary—the Flite Room restaurant and bar at 4111 Lakewood Blvd.

"We've got plenty of guns," one of the gunmen admitted, "and three boxes of ammunition. We might as well die here as get gunned down by police or die in prison."

Meanwhile, the two hostages—identified as Barney Fraser, 55, of 3310 La Jara St., a part-time cook at the Flite Room, and Tony Silva, 61, of Norwalk, a dishwasher there—were reported to be "relaxing and watching television" by the two would-be robbers.

However, Fraser, who had a severe heart attack several years ago and is still under the care of a physician, asked that his heart medication be brought to him. It was delivered to the two gunmen through a window with a warning from Fraser's doctor that "any continued tension could be serious."

The ailing hostage, who is also a civilian employee of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, is under consideration for early retirement because of his heart condition.

One of the gunmen, who initially claimed that if anything happened to the hostages it would be the fault of the lawmen, admitted as the siege wore on that he was worried about Fraser.

"If anything happens to this guy, I'm just going to put this gun to my head and pull the trigger. Maybe I'll fire a few rounds at the police first," he added as an afterthought.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Peter Pitchess joined the attempts to get the two men to surrender and release the hostages unharmed.

"I have told them," Pitchess informed newsmen following a telephone conversation with one of the men, "that under no circumstances would we meet their demands for a car and driver."

"However, we're not going to do anything until we're forced into it. But the only way they will ever get out is to walk out."

One of the gunmen, who refused to talk to sheriff's officers but telephoned the I.P.T. city desk to discuss his "fate," claimed he had $300 in his pocket and "didn't need the money fantastically bad" they would get from their robbery of the bar.

"We knew they'd have about $15,000 to $20,000 in the place for cashing checks today and it would be a pretty good start, so we decided to do it," he said.

Bugliosi, Shinn indicted for perjury as Farr informers

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

Chief Manson Prosecutor Vincent T. Bugliosi and defense attorney Daye Shinn Friday were indicted by the Los Angeles County Grand Jury on perjury charges—claiming they lied under oath in denying they gave newsmen Bill Farr confidential court documents in violation of a gag order.

The indictments were returned late Friday, the final working day for the jurors. The two lawyers were accused of three counts each of perjury by the jurors following four hours of deliberation and almost a week of testimony.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Raymond Choate, adviser to the grand jury, issued bench warrants for the two men but ordered the warrants held until 9 a.m. Tuesday to give Bugliosi and Shinn a chance to surrender.

Coincidentally, Tuesday at 9 a.m. is the date Choate ordered Farr to return to the same courtroom for sentencing on contempt charges for refusing to name his sources before the grand jury. Farr, despite spending 47 days in jail, has steadfastly refused to say who of six attorneys involved in the lengthy trial of Charles Manson and three of his girl followers for the murder of actress Sharon Tate and six others gave him the information.

The indictment accuses both Bugliosi, who was a candidate for attorney general earlier this month, and Shinn of lying before the grand jury itself and on June 30, 1971, and Nov. 27, 1972, before Judge Charles Older. Older was the trial judge and sentenced Farr to an indeterminate jail sentence in an attempt to get him to say which of the attorneys violated the court's ban against talking to the press. Both attorneys denied they gave any information to Farr, then a reporter for the Herald-Examiner.

By indicting the two men, the grand jury apparently determined from testimony that they gave Farr a statement made by prosecution witness Virginia Graham in which she told a story of the Manson Family's plan to kill a number of celebrities, including actress Elizabeth Taylor.

Bugliosi, now in private practice, has made two unsuccessful bids for political office since he quit his job as deputy district attorney—one against District Attorney Joseph Busch in 1972, and another only this month against William Norris for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

Shinn represented one of Manson's "girls" Susan Atkins, who was subsequently convicted—as were all the "Family" members—and sentenced to prison for life. Miss Atkins was a cellmate of Virginia Graham's at Sybil Brand Institute and told of the "family's" plans which lead to the Graham court statement.

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Nixon and the Kremlin leadership plunged Friday into the most vital question of their summit meetings — how to stop the nuclear arms race — and in a surprise move reached virtual agreement to forego building any more defensive missile sites.

The disclosure came after the first full day of summit talks — a day which saw the two sides meet for a total of four hours, 20 minutes and join forces on agreements to cooperate against future energy shortages, housing problems and heart disease.

A joint announcement said the leaders in the second of two meetings took up — unexpectedly — the question of further limiting defensive antiballistic missile systems (ABMs) as well as curtailing underground nuclear testing.

American sources said the ABM agreement, on which only minor details remain to be ironed out, would not be concluded separately but as part of a bigger package being hammered out in the week-long summit conference.

That new limitation was called up first because it was easy to agree on since neither side intended to go on with building a permitted second missile site anyway.

New ABM talks had not been anticipated this week since a permanent pact limiting each country to two sites of 100 missiles each was signed during the 1972 Moscow summit meetings.

"The question of additional measures to limit the ABM systems of the USSR and USA was discussed," a joint communiqué said. "An exchange of opinion also took place on the question of limiting nuclear weapons tests. The discussion on this question will be continued."

The American ABM system was known as Safeguard, and cost $5 billion. The United States put one quota of ABMs around Malmstrom Air Force Base at Grand Forks, N.D., home of its main missile-launching site. The Soviets put theirs around Moscow.

White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig told reporters, "On ABM, we're in pretty good shape, but there is more to discuss" on other nuclear subjects.

White House sources said Nixon and the Soviet leaders would be meeting at length again today before signing a 10-year trade pact and heading for a weekend at a Black Sea resort.

The Soviets went into the summit saying they were ready to set a timetable for abolishing

Rodino target

Impeach probe fairness hit

By GIL BAILEY
Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The fairness of the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry was challenged Friday in the wake of a reported statement from Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., committee chairman, that the 21 Democrats on the committee "are prepared" to vote for impeachment.

Rodino Friday denied the statement, printed by the Los Angeles Times.

The story itself sparked a House debate, certain to be continued Monday, in which two committee Republican members attacked the fairness of the inquiry.

In a separate development, Ken Clawson, White

President Nixon's fund team had salty comments on potential donors. Page A-9.

House communications director, said:

"We have talked about Rodino's personal partisanship and the Democratic partisanship of the committee for three weeks. Now we have confirmation of our worst fears out of Rodino's own mouth, and I'm sure the American people will realize now once and for all that a witch-hunt is taking place on Capitol Hill."

However, Rodino's comments, in what his office said he believed was an off the record meeting with Jack Nelson and Paul Houston of the Los Angeles Times and Sam Donaldson of ABC, followed the general line of Capitol Hill speculation that all the Democrats would vote for impeachment and that five to six committee Republican votes are needed in order to assure that the full House will approve the charges.

On the floor of the House, Rep. C. W. Young, R-Fla., immediately challenged Rodino after the chairman had made his own floor statement denying unfairness on his part. Young raised the question of a "cover-up" of partisanship on the committee and asked whether there was a "scenario" worked out in advance by "a phantom director."

Then Rep. Lawrence Hogan, R-Md., a member of the committee and a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Maryland, attacked the committee for "partisanship" and for "unfairness," citing the refusal of the committee so far to permit four of six witnesses requested by James St. Clair, President Nixon's lawyer, to testify.

He also said some evidence helpful to the committee has been excluded from its presentations.

The House debate is almost certain to be repeated Monday when the full House will decide whether the usual House rules of each member being allowed five minutes to question witnesses will be followed in the impeachment inquiry.

Rodino wants the rule waived in order to speed up Judiciary Committee hearings. Five minutes times 38 members is three hours and 10 minutes.

Lung-burning smog, heat continue

Eye-stinging, lung-burning smog is expected to linger over the Southland for the fourth consecutive day today as residents continue to swelter in 90-plus degree temperatures.

The excessive smog, which reached alert stage in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties Friday, brought an appeal from Gov. Reagan, who urged motorists to "think of their neighbors and avoid making any unnecessary automobile trips."

"There is a long, hot summer ahead," Reagan added.

APCD officials, meanwhile, predicted much the same situation today. Weathermen backed up the dismal forecast, saying, "We hope the smog will clear by Monday, but we don't foresee any major changes before then."

And Mel Zelden, an APCD meteorologist in San Bernardino County, appealed to motorists to curtail their driving today. Zelden said much of Friday's smog will still be lingering in the air.

"We anticipate a little improvement in San Bernardino and Riverside Saturday," he said. "But we do not expect a greatly noticeable difference. Sure, there aren't many people heading for work Saturday morning, but there are a lot of people in cars going shopping or to the beach."

Zelden said he expected the situation to ease up on Sunday, a day when many persons stay home.

Nevertheless, National Weather Service forecasters predicted continuation of the inversion layer, which has trapped the smog in the Los Angeles Basin.

They said the mercury would climb to 96 at the Long Beach airport today but added the beaches would remain considerably cooler—possibly in the low 70s.

Friday's blistering 98-degree temperature set a record for the hottest June 28 in Los Angeles history. The previous high—94 degrees—was recorded in 1901.

Zelden said the best advice for Southland residents is to "stay home, curtail your outdoor activities and stay indoors—preferably in an air conditioned home."

Fire officials also warned about the possibility of grass and brush fires which could be easily fanned by Santa Ana Winds in parched areas.

Pentagon has eye on summit

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — Defense leaders are keeping a close watch on developments in Moscow without knowing what options President Nixon has decided to exercise in his negotiations there, Pentagon sources say. Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and the Joint Chiefs of Staff presented their recommendations on specific nuclear arms limitation proposals at a National Security Council meeting presided over by Nixon a week ago. But the President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger left for Europe without telling the military leaders what had been decided, sources said. It is known the military chiefs are opposed to extension of the present temporary Strategic Arms Limitation Talks agreement without changes beyond its 1977 expiration date, because some senior defense officials believe this would leave the Russians free to exploit their advantage in numbers of missiles.

Vice presidential home

WASHINGTON — Congress completed action Friday on a bill designating an official residence for U.S. vice presidents — without clearly deciding whether it will be temporary or permanent. The bill, sent to President Nixon, makes a stately 81-year-old house on the Naval Observatory grounds the official residence at least of Vice President Gerald Ford. But the House earlier had amended the original Senate bill to specify that the 81-year-old residence is temporary and that Congress' 1966 authorization for construction of a brand new residence for vice presidents still stands.

Guerrillas said in jail

WASHINGTON — Eight guerrillas convicted of murdering the U.S. and Belgian ambassadors to the Sudan and another member of the U.S. embassy in Khartoum are now in jail in Cairo, the State Department said Friday. The guerrillas were sentenced to life imprisonment by a Sudanese court last week but President Jaafar Nimeri reduced the sentence to seven years and turned them over to the Palestinian Liberation Organization for carrying out the sentences. The PLO flew them in to Cairo and it had been reported that the Egypt had given them haven. A State Department spokesman, Robert Anderson, said the men had been put in jail but declined to explain the conditions or say how long they would be kept behind bars.

Ethiopia military grabs power

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia — Ethiopian armed forces occupied government and private radio stations in Addis Ababa on Friday amidst reports that the military might possibly take control. But Army broadcasts pledged loyalty to the head of state, Emperor Haile Selassie. Five months of drought and political unrest in the country have brought the feudal empire close to anarchy. The military has been the single most powerful force in Ethiopia since February, when the 2,500-year-old empire first was shaken by military mutinies, widespread strikes and violent demonstrations. The moves were not seen as a coup against the civilian cabinet of Prime Minister Endalkachew Makonnen, an aristocrat, but as a possible first step toward open military rule.

Italian confidence vote

ROME (AP) — Premier Mariano Rumor, demanding "sacrifices by all Italians," won a vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies on Friday for his center-left coalition government and its austerity program. The chamber's approval, by a 326-225 vote, resolved the nation's current political crisis and came after Rumor outlined his economic measures to revive Italy's slipping economy. Rumor, a Christian Democrat, will now take his government, Italy's 36th in the last 30 years, to the Senate for approval. And then will come the real test for the government and its austerity measures: labor's reaction. The nation's powerful labor federations can bring down any Italian government through strikes.

Venezuela, China link

CARACAS — Venezuela announced Friday the establishment of diplomatic relations with China and the breaking of relations with Nationalist China. Officials of the two countries signed an agreement in Caracas establishing diplomatic relations and paving the way for an exchange of ambassadors. A Venezuelan official said the decision to establish relations was in line with the new social democratic government's policy of relations with all nations regardless of political ideology.

U.S. having trouble deporting gypsy tribe

Deportation of a gypsy king without a kingdom and his 75 nomadic followers has become a diplomatic problem, immigration officials said Friday in Chicago.

Meanwhile, George Konovalov and his band roam the streets of Chicago as they have the roadways in cities from Nogales, Ariz., to Washington, D.C., since February.

The Bulgarian gypsies, half of them children, were ordered deported as illegal aliens by a U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service judge earlier this week.

They asked to be deported to Amsterdam, where some have relatives, and immigration officials began compiling the necessary identity documents. The gypsies have no passports and say they have no money.

But when immigration officials contacted The Netherlands consul in Chicago, the gypsies were refused visas.

"They (The Netherlands) say they can't issue them visas because they don't have U.S. travel documents," said David Vandersall, acting regional immigration director. "But we only issue travel documents to U.S. citizens or refugees, and the gypsies aren't either."

The problem now must be handled by the State Department and Netherlands diplomats in Washington, Vandersall said. He estimates it will cost $300 for each of the 75 to be returned to Amsterdam.

Immigration officials say the band illegally crossed the Mexican border near Nogales Feb. 24 after leaving a Dutch airlines tour in Mexico City. Their round-trip tickets have now expired.

Since then, they've wandered — and been chased — through a number of Midwest towns, traveling in nine cars they purchased after crossing the border.

Authorities said they chopped down trees in a Chicago park to build a campfire after being evicted from motels.

King George lives in one of Chicago's better motels, but his followers spend most of their time in parks. They came, said King George via an interpreter, in search of the American Dream.

"But no one would give us jobs or rent us apartments. There was no one here to accept us," he said.

Authorities tell a different story. "They don't want to work. They're peddlers," said an immigration service investigator.

Hollywood film star Mickey Rooney arrived in Tel Aviv, Israel Friday to begin work on a movie about the Biblical story of Rachel and Jacob.

Quitting

Col. Oran K. Henderson, who was acquitted of trying to cover up the My Lai massacre in Vietnam six years ago, is retiring from the Army.

Henderson, 53, was the highest ranking officer tried in the case. He has been commander of the U.S. Army garrison at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation near Harrisburg, Pa., since February 1973. His retirement takes effect next month.

Henderson, a native of Indianapolis, said his retirement is mandatory because he has more than 35 years service and has been a colonel for the maximum of five years with no promotion. He said he plans to remain in the Harrisburg area and look for a job.

Fischer

America's Bobby Fischer has resigned his world chess championship to protest conditions for title matches but the world chess federation will meet today to consider his demands, his manager Fred Cramer said Friday in Nice, France.

Cramer said Fischer's telegram of resignation as "a negotiating ploy to try to get the federation to make the rules the way he wants them made."

Cramer said Fischer gave up his title because the world chess federation, meeting in Nice during the 21st World Chess Olympiad, voted overwhelmingly to limit future championship matches to 36 games.

Fischer's manager said the champion did not want a championship contest limited to 36 games because "when you have a limited number of games the players keep trying to draw if they are ahead. This means uninteresting chess."

If Fischer's resignation sticks, two Soviet chess players would meet for the title. They could never challenge Fischer under world rules.

Unwilling

Vice President Gerald Ford does not want to be president, his half-brother said Friday in Lansing, Mich.

"I am absolutely positive he really doesn't covet the job," said Thomas Ford, a former state representative who now works as a legislative fiscal analyst. "He really doesn't want it."

But, in an interview with the Lansing State Journal, Ford conceded that if his brother doesn't wind up in the White House beforehand, he will be in the running for the presidency in 1976.

"He would run for the job if there is a convention deadlock. He would run for the job if there's a mandate for it. Or he would run for the job if the front runner is someone he doesn't have faith in," Ford said.

Peron

Argentine President Juan D. Peron is suffering from infectious bronchitis which has complicated his past heart disease, his doctors said Friday night in Buenos Aires.

The 78-year-old president needs "absolute rest and medical attention to cover whatever eventualities," said a medical bulletin.

The president has been at home for the past 12 days with what doctors called flu and has been seeing only his closest aides.

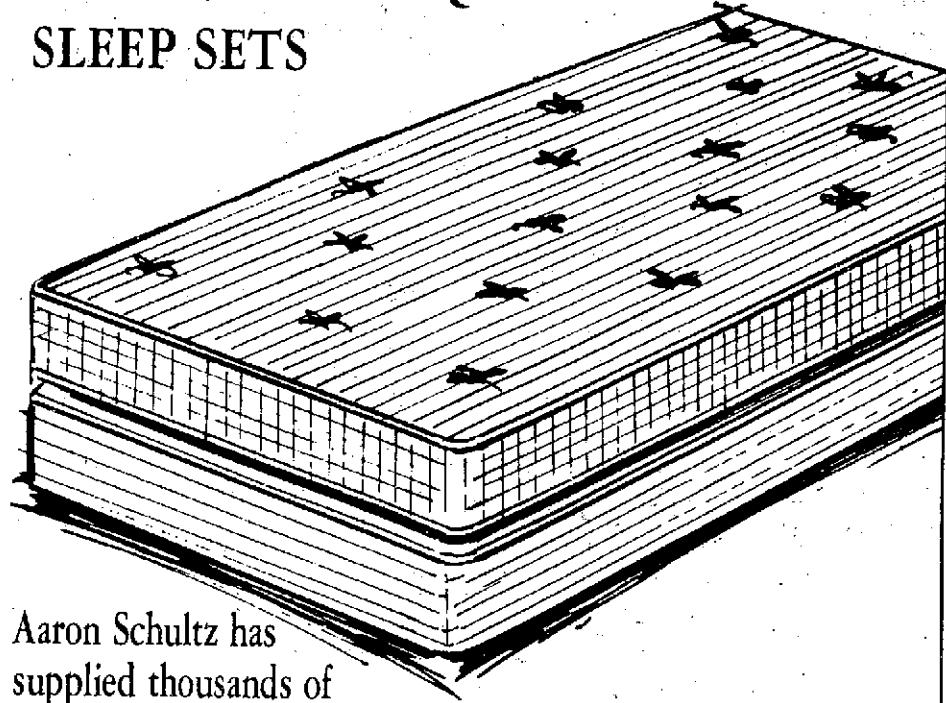

Since his dramatic homecoming last year, Peron has been more of a spiritual symbol than a statesman.

County employe strikes: $12 million annual CHP raise passes Assembly, goes to Senate

Our L.A. Bureau

There was no break in a strike by nearly 700 county sanitation workers Friday, but a walkout of county mechanics was resolved.

About 150 auto repairmen walked off their jobs Thursday morning, and a further 100 failed to show Friday morning.

However, later Friday, officials said they received assurances from the mechanics' union leader, Henry Flering, that all members would return to their jobs in county repair shops and garages Monday morning.

Wage-hike negotiations with the mechanics had bogged down, but officials said they will meet with union representatives again Monday to resume salary sessions.

Friday was the third day of the sanitation workers' strike which has shut down two of the county's six landfills and threatened the operation of the main sewage treatment plant in Carson.

Officials said the Carson plant is being maintained by management. But they said that the possibility of an equipment breakdown increases each day as the strike wears on.

They noted that one of the closed landfills is the Palos Verdes dump on Crenshaw Boulevard in Rolling Hills. They said many of the neighboring cities that use the Palos Verdes dump have been forced to transport their trash to other county landfills or to contract for waste disposal with private operations.

The city of Long Beach for the past several months has been contracting with two private landfill operations in Wilmington and has not been affected by closure of the Palos Verdes dump.

Suspect in holdup shot on 'return'

A Long Beach market proprietor Friday night shot and wounded a 15-year-old boy who fled after being recognized as a bandit who robbed the store June 17, police said.

The shooting occurred about 7 p.m. near the C&R market, 6234 Paramount Blvd. The victim, not identified because of his age, was struck in the upper right leg by a shot from a .25-caliber automatic pistol fired by Clyde Waits, 36, officers said.

Waits told officers Jim Rodriguez and D.R. Noble his wife looked at the youth—who apparently had come in to make a purchase—and immediately identified him as the robber. Waits said he then took the pistol from a shelf below the cash register and told the youth he was holding him for police.

The proprietor said the boy pushed him away and bolted from the store. Waits gave chase and fired one shot, which struck the youth as he turned the corner and ran down Cade Avenue. Meanwhile, Waits' wife called the police.

Officers, who said they apprehended the suspect as he walked down the street, took him to Paramount General Hospital to have the bullet removed. They said he would be transferred to the County-USC Medical Center for treatment and booked on suspicion of armed robbery.

Court approves Westgate Plaza Hotel purchase

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Sale of the luxurious Westgate Plaza Hotel to a Cheyenne, Wyo., company for $14.7 million was approved Friday by U.S. District Court Judge Leland C. Nielsen.

A group of shareholders of Westgate-California Corp., including former chairman C. Arnholt Smith, asked Nielsen to wait 15 days for a better offer.

The conglomerate paid $26 million to build the 13-story, downtown hotel in 1970 and is deeply in debt. It would receive none of the money to be paid by California Little America Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of Little American Refining Co. and Holding's Little America.

"I think this is just whistling in Dixie," Nielsen said of stockholders' contentions that a higher price would be found. "Nobody is going to come forward with the money."

Lost time due to strikes hits high

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Labor Department reported Friday that work-time lost to strikes during the first month after the end of wage-price controls reached a 34-month high of 6.3 million man-days in May.

The government said 638,000 workers participated in 1,060 strikes last month, compared with 840 walkouts involving 331,000 workers in April. Government wage-price controls ended April 30.

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Legislation designed to provide a $12 million annual increase in salaries of California highway patrolmen was approved by the Assembly

Friday night on a 68-0 vote.

The measure by Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, would base patrolmen's salaries on the pay average of the top five local law-enforcement departments in the state.

The bill cleared the Assembly shortly before both houses recessed for a five-week summer vacation. It will go to the Senate when that body returns.

The legislation would take control of patrolmen's salaries out of the hands of the State Personnel Board and make their wages the averages of those paid to the Los Angeles police and sheriff's departments and the police departments of San Diego, Oakland and San Francisco.

No rest

I am greatly concerned about the upkeep of the restroom facilities on the Long Beach beaches from the downtown area through Belmont Shore. I have found the restrooms to be an absolute disgrace with broken glass littered throughout the area. The health department would probably find the restrooms unsanitary. Could ACTION LINE bring this to the attention of the city officials and find out why the restrooms are so filthy? L.M., Long Beach.

Robert Kennedy, director of the city's public services department, conceded that the condition of the restrooms along the beach is "less than desirable", but he said the restrooms are cleaned everyday and are locked at night to prevent vandalism. He said that keeping the restrooms clean is a "hellish problem". He noted that the city's capital improvement project, which has been submitted to the city council for approval, includes $246,000 for rebuilding and refurbishing the restrooms.

Reliable

In June, 1973, I purchased a $240 air conditioner for my mobile home from Reliable Trailer Supply Inc. in Lynwood. I don't think the unit has ever worked properly. I reported this problem to Reliable several times, but they kept telling me the problem was the air duct system on my mobile home. I then called the manufacturer of my mobile home and the company sent out a representative. He found nothing wrong with the air duct system and he said he thought the pump wasn't working. I again called Reliable and I was told a repairman would be sent out right away, but no one ever showed up. I'm a widow and I try to support myself with a part-time job. I can't afford to throw $240 away. Can ACTION LINE help? H.N., Downey.

The problem has been resolved. At ACTION LINE's request, Reliable sent out a repairman who inspected the air conditioner and made sure the unit is working properly. Homer Earl, owner of the company, said he had sent out a repairman before, but you weren't at home.

Mayday call

In April I ordered a replacement rudder for my boat from the manufacturer, Coastal Recreation Inc., of Irvine. I was promised the rudder within three to five weeks but I still have not received it. Could ACTION LINE help me get it? D.S., Long Beach.

ACTION LINE contacted the company and by now you have received your rudder. Keith Flake, owner of the company, apologized for the delay and said the company recently moved its plant facility and was out of production for several weeks.

Hammer signs $20 billion deal

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Occidental Petroleum Corp. of the United States Friday signed six contracts with the Soviet Union worth $20 billion in a chemical fertilizer barter deal.

"This is a historic moment in Soviet-American business relations," said Armand Hammer, the 76-year-old Occidental chairman after the signing ceremony at the Soviet Foreign Trade Ministry.

American business sources said it was the largest single transaction ever concluded between a nation and a private company.

Hammer, whose first business contact here in 1921 was with the founder of the Soviet state, Vladimir I. Lenin, said it was highly significant that the signing occurred during the third Soviet-American summit.

He praised President Nixon and Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev for their help and interest in concluding the deal.

Under the 20-year agreement, Occidental will provide up to one million tons a year of superphosphoric acid to the Soviets. It will get in return Soviet ammonia and urea, by-products of natural gas used to make fertilizers.

Wages called 'out of hand'

By EDWARD COWAN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — With labor demanding big wage increases to "catch up" to the cost of living, the two months since federal wage-price controls expired have brought a round of collective-bargaining settlements of 8 to 10 per cent a year—and more—and a big increase in strikes.

"The thing is out of hand in construction," says John T. Dunlop, who was director of the old Cost of Living Council.

He points to settlements in California and to the demands of pipefitters in Juneau, Alaska, who seek a $4.50-an-hour raise on a $13.50-a-hour immediately, $1.50 in three months and $1.50 in six months.

After nearly three years of wage controls, which along with price controls ended on April 30, labor plainly is restive. The number of strikes across the nation jumped to more than 500 in May and June from 250 to 300 earlier.

THE NEW level is the highest since the Korean War, according to Kenneth E. Moffat, the Labor Department's director of mediation services. "We have 235 mediators and we have two strikes per mediator," he says. "Our guys are being run ragged."

In the offing are important settlements in the copper, telephone, aerospace and railroad industries and, most potentially turbulent of all situations, in soft-coal mining.

The spreading fear in and out of government is that, just as the 1973-74 food and energy-based inflation abated toward the year-end, a new, wage-based inflation will take hold, touching off a new wage-price, price-wage spiral.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said last week that "the kind of inflation which we are now entering" was "a wage-price inflation."

"WE EXPECT an upward drift of wages during the remainder of this year," he told a White House news conference. "If we should get a more rapid increase with this explosion that people talk about, we would obviously get a more rapid rate of inflation."

However, Stein added that "we don't think that the explosion is the most likely outcome."

Like Stein, not all analysts view double-digit wage inflation as inevitable.

"We may move into an environment in 1975 where everybody thinks 10 per cent is a fair wage increase, but I'm not convinced that will be the case," says Arthur M. Okun, the Brookings Institution economist.

Whatever the economists' varying pessimism about the outlook for inflation, no one disputes that the administration has no "incomes policy" to follow price-wage controls, which the administration felt had outlived their usefulness.

"Incomes policy" is a term that refers to a variety of governmental approaches to moderating wage increases, such as the proposal for a wage-price review board.

President Nixon's overall economic strategy is to subject the economy to a conservative combination of fiscal and monetary restraint in the hope that slow economic growth and higher unemployment will bring out inflationary forces. The theory is that if business is not booming, employers will have more difficulty raising prices and will be more resistant to generous wage-benefit settlements that require substantial price increases.

Okun, who was chief economic adviser to President Johnson, says the wage situation is "still more creep than leap." He thinks the administration's recent forecast that the rise of the consumer price index will slow to an annual rate of 7 per cent by the fourth quarter of 1974 may yet prove realistic.

Robert E. Lewis, an economist with the First National City Bank of New York, says, "I'm not prepared to call it an explosion."

On the other hand, Herman I. Liebling, a Treasury Department economist, has suggested that the 7 per cent forecast of the Council on Economic Advisers will need to be revised upward.

LEWIS CONCEDES that unemployment does not seem to dampen labor's wage demands the way it did a few years ago. The latest unemployment rate was 5.2 per cent in May.

With the consumer price index in May up 10.7 per cent from a year ago, and with food up 16.6 per cent, inflationary wage settlements appear to be regarded as inevitable. Dunlop describes the emerging pattern as "the food round."

Moreover, labor's new liking for cost-of-living escalator clauses, which link wages to prices, is viewed as making the economy more susceptible to wage-price circularity.

Labor economists deny that wages have contributed to inflation. They blame what they describe as management's greed for profits. However, few economists outside labor believe that wages have not contributed to inflation over the years.

A UNION MAN, Gordon F. Cole, a spokesman for the International Association of Machinists, said, when asked about bargaining goals this year, "The name of the game has to be money."

Dunlop is particularly upset by recent West Coast settlements in construction.

"The whole West Coast is gone at ridiculously high levels," Dunlop groans. "No one in the industry expected it to grow like it has. It's back where it was in 1971," when the Nixon administration set up the committee and recruited Dunlop.

Legislation rushed to Moscow

GI school aid late—again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of veterans going to school under the GI bill will get their checks late next month because Congress didn't act soon enough to prevent it.

They could get no checks at all if President Nixon vetoes legislation to provide them; but that is considered unlikely.

Legislation extending for two years the deadline for veterans to use their education benefits was passed unanimously by the House Thursday night for Nixon's signature. The Senate had passed it unanimously a day earlier.

But benefits for four million veterans who served between 1955 and 1966 are to expire Sunday night unless Nixon signs the bill before then. Of all veterans in school in June the affected group numbered 285,000.

Bob Noon, chief of Veterans Administration education benefits, said he doesn't know exactly how many of these are going to summer school and face the late check problem "but 80,000 is a good ballpark figure."

Senate parliamentarian Floyd M. Ridding said the bill was rushed to the White House Friday so it might be flown to Moscow along with other emergency legislation such as debt ceiling legislation for Nixon to sign.

But no matter how quickly the President signs the bill there's no way for the checks to go out until two or three weeks after the President acts.

The crisis for the 285,000 was created when a dead-lock developed between the Senate and House over an omnibus GI education bill to increase benefits including the two-year extension. Congress voted a 30-day stopgap extension but it was not long enough.

Raw farm product prices down again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prices for raw farm products, slumping for the fourth consecutive month, declined another 6 per cent in the month ended June 15, the Agriculture Department reported Friday.

Prices were 4 per cent below a year ago.

Beef cattle and hog prices fell for the fifth consecutive month, leaving the average of all meat animal prices 29 per cent below a year earlier. Because of the slump, congressional farm bloc leaders are currently pushing emergency credit legislation for livestock producers despite Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz' claim the credit could do more harm than good.

Beef cattle prices dropped to $32.30 a hundred-weight June 15, down $4.90 from a month earlier and $11.60 below a year earlier.

AMERICAN BEEF BEST and to prove there's plenty available on the hoof—behind the wire—Margarita Chado of Salinas posted a sign to heighten interest in the sale of U.S. beef, which ranchers fear is threatened by import of foreign meat.

Consumer groups oppose change in beef grading

United Press International

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is being urged for a change in beef grading standards but consumer advocates don't like the suggestion.

"This would not be upgrading inferior quality," said Cal Santare, executive of the Western States Meat Packers Association. "There would be no eating difference at all."

Western cattlemen and packers want the Department of Agriculture to change these standards so that some beef now rating only a "good" stamp under present criteria would be brought up to "choice."

"Our proposal is to adjust the standard so we can get cattle into choice at a younger age with less feed, less time in feed lots and without affecting eating quality," a packing industry spokesman said.

According to Santare, because of breeding and feeding improvements, cattle can now attain the required degree of marbling (intramuscular fat) for choice rating in less time than when grading standards were set in 1965.

The change, he added, should benefit consumers in that they would not have to pay for excess fat that now goes on animals, only to be trimmed off in the butcher shop.

Arline Mathews, a leading consumer activist and one of the investigators in last year's nationwide meat boycott, disagreed.

She called the proposal "just another way to boost the price again and get rid of animals at an earlier age."

"We would end up with tougher meat labeled choice," she added. "They are downgrading it, actually. They would be charging you more because they were just changing the name of it."

"You would be getting a cheaper cut and paying more."

RUTH Yannatta, a representative of Fight Inflation Together, added that most consumer groups probably would like to see some changes in the present grading system. However, she said they were generally skeptical of proposals put forth by the cattle industry.

A spokesman for consumer advocate Ralph Nader's California Citizen Action Group said the industry proposal "seems to be a scheme to upgrade lower grades once again at the cost of the consumer."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "multiethnic and racial" advocacy group has been formed to make recommendations to the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. Administrator John W. Warner announced Friday.

Sent to Reagan

By JOHN R. BALZAR

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Legislature Friday evening approved and rushed to Gov. Reagan a record $10.25 billion proposed state budget stripped of "pork barrel" park projects and funds for possible construction of a new capitol.

The Senate and the Assembly then recessed for a five-week summer vacation, two days before the Sunday midnight constitutional deadline for signing the budget bill.

The Senate, which killed a $10.32 billion budget bill earlier, discussed the compromise version fashioned by a new Senate-Assembly conference committee for less than five minutes and approved it on a 274 vote, the bare two-thirds margin required for approval.

The Assembly debated the biggest-in-the-nation spending plan briefly and passed it on a 68 to 6 vote. At least 54 assembly votes were needed.

The huge bill totaled about $130 million more than the "squeeze, cut and trim" budget the governor had sought to operate the state government for the next fiscal year and contained a hefty tax surplus project at about $350 million. It also surpassed the current spending level by $870 million.

The second conference committee of three senators and three assemblymen chopped a net $72 million from the proposal written by the first committee and rejected by an angry Senate Thursday night. Powerful Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, dean of the Legislature, headed the first committee.

The Senate's rejection constituted a direct slap at Collier—a man accustomed to getting his way.

Senators accused the Collier committee of ignoring the normal hearing process and larding "pork barrel" additions to the massive proposal which favored their own districts.

The second conference committee eliminated $30 million to rebuild the state capitol or construct a new one along with $41.6 million worth of park projects.

The spending proposal was about $879 million more than California's current budget, and amounted to roughly $490 for every man, woman and child in the state.

Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Los Angeles, the chairman of the second conference committee, drew bipartisan support in his effort "to please everyone." Beilenson was a chief critic of the original proposal.

Beilenson also engineered the addition of $5.5 million to the spending package for a mandatory vehicle smog inspection program in the South Coast Air Basin of Southern California. The project was to begin gradually this fall, but the earlier conference committee had eliminated all its financing.

The striking of the parks projects, funds for which were provided by voter approval June 6 of a $250 million bond issue, resulted from intense Senate criticism that the plans were never reviewed by any lawmakers except Collier and his committee.

It will take additional separate legislation to approve any of the more than 60 projects.

The deletion of the $30 million for the Capitol was aimed directly at Collier, the flinty 71-year-old chairman of the Finance Committee. Collier has made no secret of his dream to construct a new legislative office building.

However, Republican senators objected that the funds—plus $42 million already stockpiled for the project—were unnecessary, since the Legislature had not yet even decided whether to build a new Capitol or repair unsafe portions of the existing one.

Flournoy bars ad ban

Associated Press

Houston I. Flournoy, Republican candidate for governor, Friday turned down the proposal by his Democratic opponent, Edmund G. Brown Jr., that they forego radio and television commercials during the campaign.

Brown said Tuesday such a move would save each candidate about $1 million.

Flournoy accepted Brown's suggestion that they meet in six face-to-face debates, but he said that wasn't enough for them to get their ideas across to the voters.

Concerning the advertising issue, Flournoy told a Los Angeles news conference:

"I have no intention of precluding my campaign from the use of any media opportunity or of entering into an agreement which would prevent me from taking my case to the people of California."

In a reference to the fact that Brown's father is a former governor, Flournoy said, "Perhaps the paid advertising prohibition would aid candidates with a high recognition level, but unfortunately not that many people know my 80-year-old father in Modesto."

Flournoy said he felt that the newly enacted Prop. 9 would provide sufficient control over campaign expenditures.

Brown had said campaign spending "has gotten completely out of hand with 30-second spots showing candidates walking down the beach with their coats over their arm, their kids and dogs whatever."

Brown said he was confident that radio and television stations would make free time available for debates and urged that six debates be held between Labor Day and the election.

"While I am pleased that Mr. Brown has committed himself to the debate format, I firmly believe that six face-to-face encounters are simply not enough," Flournoy said.

Flournoy contended that debates held once a week around the state would be more effective.

"To confine the debates to the final two months of the campaign would limit the opportunity for calm, intelligent discussion of the many critical issues facing this state," he said.

State employee benefits rise

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A $62 million boost in state employees' benefits was signed into law Friday by Gov. Reagan.

The bill, sponsored by the Reagan administration, declares state policy is for its employees to receive pay and benefits equal to those paid to employees of private industry.

Calf's hormone saves life of little Heather

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When 5-year-old Heather entered a hospital here two months ago, she weighed only 26 pounds and was near death because her body could not produce an infection-defense hormone.

The Sacramento girl's condition has improved and she will soon be going home, said doctors, thanks to a drug developed by a research team at the University of California Medical Center.

In a history-making procedure, doctors derived a hormone called thymosin from the thymus glands of calves, and injected it into Heather. Thymosin occurs naturally in most humans and plays a vital role in the body's resistance to infection.

The hormone, never before given to a human being, was a last ditch effort by UC medical staff to save the girl's life.

Doctors said the results "show great potential" for persons whose malfunctioning thymus glands make them defenseless against infection.

They said that theoretically the hormone could be helpful in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, transplant rejection and even cancer.

Heather, whose last name was not released at parent's request, has been ill most of her life. She was admitted to UC Medical Center in April, suffering from bloody diarrhea. Doctors considered attempting a thymus gland transplant but decided to try hormone injections instead.

Heather began daily shots of thymosin April 15 and scientists found that the number of her disease-fighting antibodies increased almost immediately.

Doctors ended the shots May 10 and Heather was discharged. But the protective power of the hormone dissipated and Heather was readmitted to the hospital June 18.

Again, her improvement after the shots were begun has been remarkable.

"As far as we can determine, she will need the shots for the rest of her life," said Dr. Diana Wara.

Karen 'confused little girl'

'Police didn't believe,' child says

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Karen Joyce Huber, the 5-year-old kidnap victim who had been missing for seven months before being found Thursday in a foster home here, was quoted Friday as saying she had tried to tell police she had been abducted when they found her with the driver of a stolen car.

But, she said, "They wouldn't believe me."

Police in San Diego said they stopped that man, William Clifford Knapp, with the Huber girl last Jan. 15 and booked him for investigation of auto theft.

In the belief that Karen was Knapp's daughter, authorities put her in a San Diego foster home where she spent the last five months.

"There is a distinct possibility that we goofed," a San Diego police inspector said Friday. But the officers said they believed Knapp when he insisted the girl who was kidnapped last Nov. 13 was his daughter, Inspector O. W. Burkett said.

Two San Diego reporters with tape recorders talked with Karen and her mother, who said the girl has never seen her real father.

The youngster was asked, "Did you ever think that Bill (Knapp) was your daddy?" She replied, "No-o-o-h."

Q: "But he told the police that he was your daddy, didn't he?"

A: "Yeah. . . He's a liar."

Q: "And what did you tell the police?"

A: "I told them that he wasn't my dad, but they wouldn't believe me."

The girl's version was disputed by Burkett, who said "she did call him 'daddy' when we talked to her."

After Knapp was arrested Jan. 15, Karen was sent to live with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Darr of El Cajon, and she attended Rios Elementary School there.

Knapp spent two months in jail in Gardena in connection with the auto theft. Two months later, he was sentenced in Los Angeles to 90 days for child molestation involving another girl. He was released June 16, the day before Michele Lynn Booher, 4, was kidnapped from her home in Long Beach.

Knapp was arrested again last Wednesday in San Diego. He is being held in Los Angeles County jail in lieu of $50,000 bond on charges of child stealing, child molestation and auto theft in the Booher case.

Karen's memory also was challenged by San Diego policeman Charles H. Davidson, who arrested Knapp last January. He quoted her as crying out when he was arresting Knapp, "Don't hurt my daddy."

A Los Angeles police officer who talked to the little girl Friday morning said, "She's a pretty confused little girl." And Mrs. Huber said Friday that, "When she came home, Karen asked me, 'Mommy, Mommy, what's my last name?'"

As Ehrlichman trial opens

Hunt, Dr. Fielding testify on break-in

By WESLEY G. PIPPETT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — E. Howard Hunt Jr. testified Friday he proposed a "bag job" — a burglary — at the office of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding in 1971 after the Beverly Hills psychiatrist refused to cooperate with FBI agents investigating Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Both Fielding, who said he gave intensive treatment to Ellsberg between 1968 and 1970, and Hunt, a former member of the White House "plumbers" special investigative unit and mastermind of the 1972 Watergate break-in, testified as the government began its conspiracy case against John D. Ehrlichman and three others.

The so-called Ellsberg burglary trial, now in its third day, was recessed until Monday with Hunt, still in the witness chair. The first 3½ hours of testimony Friday disclosed little new information.

The "plumbers" were organized in the summer

E. HOWARD HUNT
Burglary His Idea

of 1971 after Ellsberg leaked the Pentagon Papers to newspapers. Ehrlichman, once President Nixon's No. 2 aide, was placed in charge, and Hunt, a former CIA agent for 21 years, was employed as a White House consultant and attached to the group.

FIELDING confirmed in his testimony that he refused the request of two FBI agents during the summer of 1971 for medical information about Ellsberg.

Hunt, testifying under immunity from further prosecution, said he learned of Fielding's refusal sometime after he was brought to the White House in July, 1971, by former presidential special counsel Charles W. Colson, who has pleaded guilty in the Ellsberg case.

"It seemed to me a bag job was in order," Hunt said. Asked to define his term, Hunt replied, "surreptitious entry."

At the end of the day, Associate Special Prosecutor William H. Merrill said he believed the prosecution would complete its presentation by next Friday. U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said he may hold Saturday sessions to complete the trial in a month.

Fielding said Beverly Hills police assured him the break-in, committed on the Friday night of the 1971 Labor Day weekend, was made in search of drugs.

DR. LEWIS FIELDING
His Office 'Torn Up'

But he added, "I had a vague impression that some records pertaining to Ellsberg were missing, but I couldn't be sure, I couldn't be sure."

Fielding said that when he arrived at his office after the burglary, "it was a mess." He said he found Ellsberg's records removed from their envelope and lying on top of it.

It has been testified previously that Hunt reported that the break-in had been unproductive.

William S. Frates, Ehrlichman's chief lawyer, asked Fielding if he would consider it a matter of confidentiality if a patient informed him he was going to commit a crime. Gesell sustained Merrill's objection.

WHEN FRATES asked Fielding whether Ellsberg had referred to Rand Corp. documents, Merrill quickly objected again and Gesell warned, "that's enough of that now, Mr. Frates." Ellsberg worked for the Rand Corp. at the time.

Hunt testified that initially, he and G. Gordon Liddy, another defendant in the Watergate break-in, planned to pull the Ellsberg break-in themselves. He said he instead recruited Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio Martinez to avoid any connection with the White House if they were caught.

EHRLICHMAN, Liddy, Barker and Martinez are charged with conspiracy to violate Fielding's civil liberties. Ehrlichman also is charged with lying to the FBI and the Watergate grand jury about the break-in.

As Ehrlichman, once President Nixon's No. 2 aide, looked on intently and soberly, Merrill charged the break-in was "the willful, arrogant act of men who took the law into their own hands because they thought they were above the law."

Raising his voice only once, Merrill charged that "Ehrlichman lied" to investigators after the break-in became public knowledge in April, 1973, because "he thought he could get away from it."

HE SAID he could prove that Ehrlichman first OK'd the break-in in a memo he wrote Aug. 11, 1971. Then, Merrill said, Ehrlichman gave the final go-ahead while he was vacationing on Cape Cod Aug. 31 in a telephone call in which he said: "Okay, let me know if you find anything."

Henry H. Jones, a black attorney and one of Ehrlichman's four lawyers, said that as "nominal" leader of the White House "plumbers" special investigative unit, Ehrlichman approved a "covert" operation to learn about Ellsberg's motives in leaking the Pentagon Papers on the Vietnam War. But Jones said Ehrlichman did not specifically approve a burglary at Fielding's Beverly Hills office.

"As he understood 'covert' it did not mean trampling of the Fourth Amendment (the constitutional guarantee against unreasonable search and seizure), but 'covert' as one goes into a bank to make a deposit not to be disclosed," Jones said.

PRESIDING U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell read the Fourth Amendment to the jury and defined a conspiracy as an agreement between two or more persons to accomplish an unlawful purpose by lawful means or a lawful purpose by unlawful means. He said any argument the break-in was done in the name of national security was "not a defense."

Daniel Schultz, attorney for Barker and Martinez, who are Cuban-Americans and former CIA functionaries, argued they knew nothing about Ellsberg — who had been identified to them as a "traitor" leaking secrets to the Soviet Embassy — until moments before they entered Fielding's office. Schultz said they had "agreed to assist solely out of loyalty to this country."

Peter Maroulis, attorney for Liddy, who was staff assistant to Nixon at the time and who was later convicted as a mastermind of the 1972 Watergate break-in, contended that the authority for the break-in came from Nixon.

Schlesinger, PR firm deny 'CIA-cover' story

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spokesmen for Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, then director of the CIA, met in February 1973 with a representative of Robert R. Mullen & Co., an international public relations firm, and "told them to keep their mouths shut about their relations with the CIA."

An informed official source said Thursday that Schlesinger, then director of the CIA, met in February 1973 with a representative of Robert R. Mullen & Co., an international public relations firm, and "told them to keep their mouths shut about their relations with the CIA."

ABC NEWS reported Thursday night that the Senate Watergate committee has documents showing that Schlesinger also supplied the Mullen firm with agency files to use in planting cover stories.

The network said the public relations firm planted an erroneous story in the March 5 issue of Newsweek magazine asserting that former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson was in charge of dirty tricks in President Nixon's 1972 election campaign.

"Schlesinger did not authorize anything like that," Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said Friday. "He would not authorize anything like that."

Robert Bennett, president of the Mullen firm, also denied that his company planted any news stories designed to hide its ties with the CIA or that the company had been told to do so by CIA officials.

Bennett said he was interviewed by a Newsweek reporter working on the Colson story. But Bennett said he did not initiate the story and was among a number of persons interviewed.

"I've never met James Schlesinger in my life," Bennett added. "He gave us no instructions of that kind. He gave us no instructions to plant material anywhere."

Friedheim also said Schlesinger "never met with Mullen representatives."

ACCORDING TO Friedheim, the Watergate committee has not raised this issue with Schlesinger nor advised him that it has any documents like those described by ABC.

Schlesinger has cooperated with both the Watergate and CIA oversight committees in Congress and provided all material relevant to investigations of alleged CIA involvement in the Watergate episode, Friedheim said.

The Mullen firm employed convicted Watergate break-in conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. after he left the CIA and at least part-time while he was with the White House.

Kalmbach gets change of jail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convicted Watergate defendant Herbert Kalmbach will surrender to federal authorities in Baltimore by noon Monday to begin serving a six-to-18-month sentence for campaign finance violations, the Justice Department said Friday.

The department said the arrangement for Kalmbach to surrender in Baltimore was made at the request of the House Judiciary Committee which expects to summon him to testify in impeachment proceedings.

Kalmbach was ordered to serve his sentence at the Federal Correctional Institution in Lompoc, but will be confined at an unspecified detention facility in the Washington-Baltimore area until the Judiciary Committee has no further need for him.

Salty comments marked Nixon fund raising

By DICK BARNES

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's 1972 fund raisers would sometimes in frustration label potential campaign donors with such comments as "Hot air," "A great disappointment" and "Needs to be scared."

Private notes of the financial team that raised more than $60 million were released in federal court Friday after a lawsuit seeking more campaign data was dismissed. Voluminous annotated lists of solicitation prospects illustrate how the Nixon campaign set money targets for wealthy persons, then assigned fund raisers and kept track of the results.

ROSE MARY Woods, President Nixon's personal secretary, was assigned along with finance chairman Maurice H. Stans to get $50,000 to $100,000 from socialite Perle Mesta.

But the subsequent comment read "No support."

Martha Mitchell, wife of onetime campaign manager John N. Mitchell, was assigned to one female prospect, then was crossed out. Mrs. Mitchell was critical of the campaign when her husband bowed out four months before the election.

Lawyer and securities executive Charles W. Steadman of Washington was tagged with "Hot air. No contribution" after an unsuccessful effort to get $25,000 from him.

Another Washington lawyer, Guy Martin, was targeted for up to $100,000, but was later labeled "A great disappointment."

A Sarita, Tex., family named East got the notation: "Ask big. Won't get much. Needs to be scared." Their targeted amount was $100,000 to $200,000.

A TEXAS man named Walter R. Davis was labeled for $50,000 but labeled "dangerous."

Some well-known names cropped up in the lists, which were variously labeled "Prospects for solicitation," "Contributors to be evaluated for additional contributions," "Individuals to be solicited for further contributions" and "Individuals not to be solicited."

Singer Frank Sinatra was to be approached for $100,000 by a man named J. W. Jones. A confidant of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was J. Walter Jones, whose name cropped up during the tax investigation of Agnew. Sinatra is also a close Agnew friend.

Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis was targeted for $50,000 to $100,000, with the approach to be made by Thomas Pappas, a Boston and Athens businessman mentioned in the White House tape transcripts in connection with fund-raising for Watergate defendants.

Howard Boyd, chairman of El Paso Natural Gas Co., was targeted for $100,000 with his firm's name listed and the notation "Antitrust, Algeria (FPC)." El Paso is involved in a project to bring liquefied natural gas to the United States from Algeria.

THE DISMISSED lawsuit had been brought by Common Cause, a self-styled citizens' lobby, against the Nixon re-election committee. The fund-raising notes and much other campaign data had been obtained during the case from the Nixon committee records but until Friday were under court seal.

Common Cause attorney Kenneth Guido said other material freed for release indicated that $1,875,000 in previously unreported funds had also been raised by the Nixon campaign but was routed through other political committees.

By sometimes holding up campaign documents to peer through obliterated entries, Common Cause attorneys believe they have identified the donors of about $1 million of the money. These donations were mostly in the $1,000 to $3,000 range, in some cases from persons previously recorded as making other large contributions.

Wiretaps 'dirty' but necessary, Saxbe says

By CHARLES R. HORNICK
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said Friday he wouldn't deny that wiretapping is "a dirty business ... but sometimes it is a last resort of decent men striving to protect our freedom against activities far, far dirtier."

He said, however, that there are few cases of electronic surveillance relating to the national security.

He said that wiretapping and bugging is an effective means of acquiring vitally needed security information. He also said that "lack of proper intelligence information has contributed to grievous suffering ... in recent decades."

He said the department is investigating possible illegal attempts by state and local law enforcement agencies to "creep into our daily lives" through electronic surveillance. But he did not name the communities involved.

Saxbe also said electronic eavesdropping by private individuals is a growing problem.

He cited a recent Maryland case in which an automobile dealer bugged booths where customers were privately discussing purchases and noted the judge's belief that "this type of illegal eavesdropping was widespread."

Federal law prohibits a private citizen from engaging in surveillance except when he is a party to the conversation.

Saxbe said the department has brought 86 cases under that law since it was passed in 1968 and, "We expect that cases in the current fiscal year will be the highest to date."

He invited citizens to notify federal authorities when they suspect illegal eavesdropping is going on.

The former Ohio senator said, "It is impossible to accurately gauge the extent of illegal electronic surveillance in the nation, since it is an activity that by its very nature is clandestine."

But, as he has previously, Saxbe pledged that the Justice Department will observe the most stringent limitations on wiretapping for national security purposes.

Saxbe must personally approve all such wiretaps but need not obtain court approval as he must in wiretaps employed in criminal investigations.

Women's unit eyes 3rd party

By PEGGY SIMPSON

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The next two years will show whether the national political parties are serious about opening up to women and minorities or whether a third party movement may develop, women politicians said here Friday.

"It's very touch-and-go," said Midge Miller of Madison, Wis., a Democratic state representative attending the National Women's Political Caucus which is holding a three-day meeting here.

"A lot of people who should be redoubling their efforts when they look at the misuse of power in Watergate are holding back. Instead they say politics is so dirty they won't touch it and that's the kind of attitude that allows party hacks to keep control," she said in an interview.

Women have lost some ground since the 1972 conventions because of a backlash from conservatives who didn't understand the effort to widen the party base by including more women and minorities, she said.

The dimensions of this loss won't be known until the party's miniconvention in December, she said.

She said the solidarity of the women's movement, and especially of the National Women's Political Caucus, will determine how seriously the national parties look at women.

Bobbie Kilberg, a Washington attorney and vice-chairwoman of the caucus, said the Republican Party is also trying to resist inroads by women and minorities as a reaction to the 1972 Democratic convention.

GOP women, however, have united to try and open up the party's processes to women and minorities. A crucial vote on their efforts will come at a national committee meeting in December.

"We seriously believe that the Republican Party is declining, almost to the point of extinction in many areas," she said. "If we don't do something, Republicans will be talking to Republicans and Democrats will be talking to the country."

She said if the November elections go as badly for Republicans as many people predict, even the most conservative state and county GOP politicians may realize the need to widen the base.

She said, however, there is much talk among disaffected Republicans about starting a third party around a moderate candidate such as former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson or John Gardner, chairman of the citizens' lobby Common Cause.

But Miss Kilberg said she believes the Republican and Democratic parties will remain the principal ones.

"I'm on the board of Common Cause and I know that it was not or is not our intention to start a third party," she said. "But ask me in 1980. I may not have the faith anymore."

Responds to thoughts

Computer a mindreader

By LINDA KRAMER

MENLO PARK (AP)—A young woman wears a modified white football helmet on her head, electrodes sticking out like hair curlers. On a TV-size screen in front of her a white dot moves up and down.

She is hooked to a computer, and scientists say the squiggly line across the screen shows the computer successfully read her mind and responded to her mental command.

Lawrence Pinneo, director of the Neuro-Physiology Program at the Stanford Research Center here, says the computer relies on brain wave tracings taken by an electroencephalograph. The tracings show that distinctive wave patterns correspond with individual words, whether the words are spoken aloud or merely thought.

For example, when a person thinks about the word "up," the machine obliges by moving a white dot on the screen up. It also moves sideways and down in response to those thoughts.

Pinneo said the mind-reading machine does better recognizing a spoken word than a silent thought. When spoken, he said the computer responds correctly about 80 per cent of the time. To silent commands, it responds correctly about 30 to 40 per cent of the time.

"It looks space-agey, but it's only bizarre because we haven't explored much of our mental potential," said Rebecca Mahoney, 22, as her brain directed the computer. "Think of the advantages from linking computer intelligence with human intelligence."

Like the humans whose minds it monitors, the computer sometimes errs, but scientists predict that someday the machine may lead to persons conversing entirely in pure thought.

Pinneo says the key to improving the computer's accuracy may be training individuals to think purer thoughts.

Someday, he says, ways may be developed to reverse the direction of communication so that machines can electronically insert messages into brains, which may mean the electronic gadget could turn into a mechanical monster used by government to control the thoughts of citizens.

Pinneo says the experiments show no two people think alike. Therefore, the machine must be taught how to interpret each new subject's brain waves.

still is in the embryonic stage and though still unreliable, the computer has had "spurts where it is 100 per cent correct."

The implications of such work "are limited only by imagination," Pinneo said. Among possible uses:

—It could allow deaf persons to converse without sign or written languages.

—It could lead to remote controlled fighting machines which respond to the thoughts of a commander stationed away from the battlefield.

Medical bill protects rights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House gave final passage Friday to legislation designed to protect the rights of humans used in medical experimentation and research.

The compromise bill was passed 311 to 10, one day after the Senate passed it 72 to 14.

The legislation is designed to prevent abuses such as the Tuskegee syphilis experiment in which men were not treated and not told what was being done to them.

It also could lead to prohibition of such other abuses as involuntary sterilization, psychosurgery without safeguards, and the use of experimental drugs on prisoners without adequate consent.

A new commission would draft basic principles for biomedical and behavioral research and recommend action to be taken to prevent abuses.

In two years, the commission would be replaced by a permanent advisory council which would monitor medical experimentation.

The bill outlaws research and experimentation on a living human fetus, before or after induced abortion, biomedical and behavioral research; guidelines for the selection of human subjects; and the nature and definition of informed consent.

Scientists eye rocket launch rain or shine, NASA says

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (UPI) — A team of about 100 scientists from four nations are tired of waiting for bright skies and may launch 54 research rockets within the next few days, rain or shine, a spokeswoman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday.

The scheduled lift-off was postponed for the seventh straight day Friday because of dense clouds. NASA spokesmen say the project is part of the most extensive study ever attempted of weather conditions in the upper atmosphere.

Overcast skies are forecast again for Saturday, but NASA spokeswoman Joyce Milliner said scientists may decide to fire the rockets anyway under a contingency plan which would use a space agency jet flying above the clouds to help collect data.

The clouds prevent use of on-base ground optical sites at the NASA Flight Center.

"Scientists are going to make an all-out effort to launch the rockets by July first," Mrs. Milliner said. July 1 is the self-imposed deadline for the project, which is being jointly conducted by scientists from the United States, Canada, Great Britain and West Germany.

After that date an orbiting NASA satellite will no longer be in position to assist in the experiment. Facilities at the NASA center here will also have to be used for other scheduled projects.

Mrs. Milliner said the only element of the weather that could outright kill the project is thunderstorms, which would make it dangerous to fly a jet over the area.

The National Weather Service Friday forecasted more overcast skies and a chance of rain on Saturday, clearing skies Sunday and rain again on Monday. The project, Aladdin 74, will consist of a series of 54 rockets fired over a 24 hour period. After reaching altitudes of 85 miles, the rockets will eject chemicals creating pink, yellow and red clouds, which are expected to be visible from New England to Florida and possibly into the Midwest, duplicate to b wire points.

NORMAN TOOMAN checks the work on his partially built floating parsonage, the cement schooner he plans to sail across the Pacific to do missionary work. The craft should be finished in a couple of years.

—AP Wirephoto

Fireman building schooner for use in missionary work

BAKERSFIELD (AP)—Norman Tooman wants to be a missionary so he's building a 43-ton cement schooner in his backyard to sail across the Pacific.

When the 65-foot, twin-masted backyard boat is completed and tested in a couple of years, Tooman, his wife and three school-age daughters will set sail for the Cook or Targas islands.

"I intend to pull up at the islands and fix things, whatever needs to be done," Tooman said in an interview Thursday. "I'd like to be getting under way this afternoon."

But first there's the task of finishing the frame on which Tooman, 40, has labored the past three years, then pouring strong, lightweight cement for the hull and finally hauling the boat to port by truck. Tooman said he always has worked well with his hands and

"studied a lot" to learn the specifics of boat building.

As the "Amazing Grace" grew and grew in his 150-foot deep backyard, his neighbors showed some surprise, Tooman, 40, admitted.

"I told the neighbors I was going to build a boat. I guess they figured it was going to be a ski boat or something. Then when they saw the scaffolding starting to rise out of the ground, they must have wondered what was going on."

His wife Mariann, who will help with missionary work as a registered nurse, also was bemused by the idea. "She thought I was out of my gourd," Tooman said.

But the family refinanced their house and Tooman did gardening to help supplement his city fireman's income and finance the $50,000 project.

"You have to live real close to the bone and finance as you go," he said. Tooman didn't ask their Southern Baptist denomination for financial help. "I don't know if they could finance a project like this," he said. "Anyway I want to be free to work wherever I feel the need."

Year-round daylight saving 'no great deal' for energy

By ED ZUCKERMAN
Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON—The idea of saving energy through year-round observance of daylight saving time wasn't so great, after all, the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) told Congress Friday.

It might have saved 1 per cent of electrical consumption during the winter months but, at the same time, the extra hours of daylight encouraged people to get in their automobiles and burn up gasoline traveling somewhere.

DOT said that during January and February, when gasoline was scarce, travel was reduced. But in March and April, when gasoline became available and it was warmer, year-round daylight saving time may have increased gasoline use as much as 1 per cent in some states.

DOT recommended that the nation observe an eight-month daylight saving time period and return to standard time from the last Sunday in October through the last Sunday in February.

Based on studies on the effects of year-round daylight saving time, DOT concluded:

—No significant effects on traffic safety were attributed to daylight saving. Instead, lowering of speed limits and restrictions on the availability of gasoline was credited for the decrease of road fatalities.

—The Federal Communications Commission reported that daylight time caused adverse economic impacts for some radio stations because of frequency interference problems during prime time morning rush hour broadcasts.

—No measurable effects of daylight time were reported in the areas of crime, agriculture and recreation.

—Daylight time was found to be generally popular with the public, but not in the winter months from November to February.

—Fatalities involving school-age children over the entire day in both January and February were reduced from the previous year. There was an increase in school children fatalities during the morning hours of 6 to 9 a.m. But an offsetting decrease in fatalities occurred in the early evening hours.

DOT's report to Congress noted that the study on daylight time's impact on energy was difficult to assess.

Its effect could not in general be reliably separated from the effects of other changes occurring at the time, such as limited gasoline availability, speed limit reductions, Sunday gasoline station closings and voluntary reductions in the use of lighting, heating and unnecessary travel.

Aerosols 'thinning' ozone belt

IRVINE (AP)—You are weakening the protective belt of ozone around the earth whenever you use sprays to deodorize underarms, keep your hair in place, clean an oven or kill bugs, say two scientists at the University of California at Irvine.

They say an increase in skin cancer and sunburn could result.

Dr. F. Sherwood Rowland, professor of chemistry, and Dr. Mario J. Molina, research associate, have been doing research on the effect of aerosols on the ozone layer since last fall.

Their initial findings were published Friday in "Nature," an international scientific journal issued in England.

The ozone belt surrounds the earth some 10 to 15 miles above the surface in what is usually termed the stratosphere. It filters the ultraviolet radiation from the sun.

THE OFFENDING ingredient, say the researchers, is chlorofluoromethane, which is used as the propellant to spray the product out of the aerosol container.

Nearly one million tons of chlorofluoromethane were manufactured in the United States last year. "We see this as having very serious consequences," said Rowland, 47, who helped found the university's chemistry department 10 years ago and was its first chairman.

Rowland and Molina, 31, explained that chlorofluoromethane molecules drifting into the stratosphere are broken down by the ultraviolet rays, allowing chlorine gas to escape. The chlorine then causes a chain reaction with each chlorine atom destroying thousands of ozone molecules.

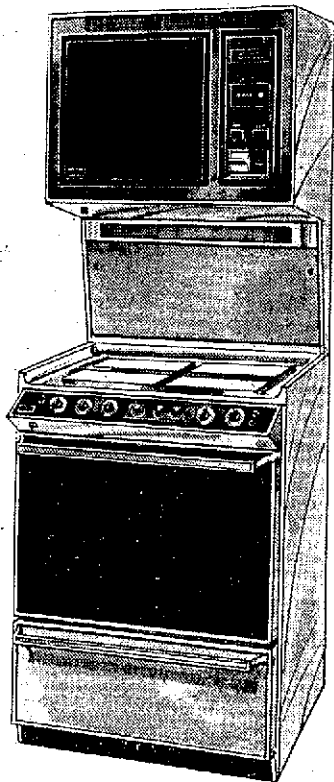

The result, the researchers say, will be a thinning of the ozone belt in two or three decades if we continue using aerosols at the present rate. "A 50 per cent change would yield a tenfold increase in radiation at the wave length that causes sunburn and skin cancer," Rowland said.

TENSE VIGIL

ed the Flite Room shortly before 9 a.m. Friday wearing stocking masks and carrying several guns, including a shotgun.

A Long Beach policeman, Robert Winery, who was the second officer on the scene following a call from a telephone lineman who saw the men enter the bar carrying guns, said he peered into a back door and saw the masked man holding a shotgun to the head of one of the hostages.

"Bad things will happen," Winery quoted the gunman as saying, "if the police don't pull back."

Shortly thereafter, a massive number of sheriff's officers aided by Long Beach police converged on the bar at the corner of Carson Street and Lakewood Boulevard.

At least a dozen members of the Special Weapons and Tactics squad, an elite force of sheriff's sharpshooters specially trained to cope with similar situations, formed a perimeter around the barricaded bar, standing in the nearly 100-degree heat wearing flak suits and heavy gear.

But although the temperature soared on the outside of the bar, the thermometer inside also hit the high 90s, according to the gunmen, who complained bitterly when they said deputies had cut off their air conditioning.

PITCHESS SAID the air conditioning had been cut accidentally.

"I keep dipping a towel in ice water and dripping it over my shoulder," one gunman complained.

"But I think things will be over before it gets hot tomorrow."

"I really don't have any hope on this thing," Ray admitted. "I've already resigned myself to that fact."

Told that police were dusting their car for fingerprints, Ray appeared not to care, claiming that he and his partner wore gloves. Police later said the car had been stolen.

"My car is broken down," the talkative young man said via telephone, "so Tom said he would get a car—I think it was stolen somewhere in Orange County."

THE GUNMAN WHO identified himself as Tom Williams said his estranged wife and two children live in Fullerton, but refused to give sufficient details for authorities to locate his family.

His story to newsmen, also via telephone, conflicted with his partner's in that he claimed they "didn't go in to rob the place...We went in on sort of a lark, I guess..."

His companion claimed that he had never been in trouble before, and had never been in jail; the other said both had a record of felony convictions.

Ray, who said he was married and had two children but refused to elaborate, appeared to become resigned to dying as the night dragged on and police floodlights lit up the inside and outside of the bar.

"I've already seen my heaven and hell...in my lifetime...so I'm not afraid to die," he said. "All I want is a car—a running chance. It's really a chance on complete freedom versus death."

Ray said he felt his partner was "a nervous sort" who was despondent because a reconciliation with his wife had failed.

"HE TRIED TO talk to her," Ray said frankly, "but she wouldn't even see him. She let him see the children. That's probably why he's ready to die too."

Meanwhile, the partner, Williams, in a separate conversation, admitted that they had agreed the hostages were not to be released. He said:

"No, we're not going to turn them loose...They are the only basis for our getting out of here...Just tell that guy Pitchess to get us a car...Just get us a car."

Claiming the hostages were in good shape, Williams said he would "prove it" by allowing Fraser to talk on the telephone.

"Just tell Pitchess to get that car out here so we can get out," Fraser said.

Admitting that his ailing heart was all right except "it's kinda pounding, but I'll try to keep it going," Fraser said that both he and Silva were well treated.

"We're sitting here watching television and they're sitting in back of us. We've got plenty of food—I'm a cook, you know, and this is a restaurant. So we're not hungry. But one of my pills is giving me trouble—it's wrong for this setup—so I can't eat. But otherwise everything is all right."

HENRY KISSINGER signs Soviet-U.S. agreements while President Nixon and Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev enjoy a light moment.

SURPRISE MISSILE PACT

underground testing, and both sides indicated there likely would be agreement on this aspect if not on an overall arms treaty.

The announcements capped a day in which Nixon, still in an atmosphere of jovial friendliness, had shaken a few friendly Russian hands in Red Square, made a ceremonial pilgrimage, and then, before getting down to the nuclear question in late afternoon, signed the energy, housing and heart disease agreements during a champagne ceremony in the Kremlin.

In a break between two talks of more than two hours each, Brezhnev had beamed and led the applause as Nixon signed an energy pact with Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny and a housing agreement with Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Then Nixon and Brezhnev talked and joked between themselves as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko took up their felt-tip pens for a pact involving cooperation on artificial heart research.

Nixon shook Brezhnev's hand so firmly that the Soviet leader feigned pain, and then pretended to squeeze Nixon's hand in a bonecrusher grip. Both laughed.

THE American President began his day with a traditional trip to lay a red, white and blue wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier, and lifted his own spirits with a bit of American-style campaigning on the way back.

When shouts of "peace, peace and friendship" were heard from about 1,000 citizens reaching over waist-high steel barricades near Red Square, a smiling Nixon abandoned his black limousine and waded into a five-minute handshaking session.

The signing ceremony followed, and Brezhnev issued a statement saying "Frankly, this is only the first stage. There is much yet to be done, and it requires work and goodwill."

The first agreements of this so-called "third summit" followed up pacts engineered during the two previous Nixon-Brezhnev meetings and were completed at a lower level before the current visit. They provide for:

—Cooperation in developing technology to find, mine, develop and process such fossil fuels as oil, shale, natural gas and coal. There will also be a swap of technology on solar, geothermal and synthetic fuels and an exchange of scientists and specialists. It is a five-year agreement.

—Cooperation in developing ways to improve housing, develop new modes of living and even constructing new settlements, especially in earthquake-prone areas and extremely hot and cold climates. A five-year pact.

—Joint research on the development of an artificial heart, the development of instruments to detect heart disease and the extension of the life of cardiac pacemakers. A three-year accord.

Smoking held main lung cancer cause

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government said Friday it has new evidence that cigarette smoking is the major cause of lung cancer, chronic bronchitis and emphysema, and is a major factor in coronary heart disease.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, in a report to Congress 10 years after the first U.S. surgeon general's report on smoking and health, also contained new warnings to pipe and cigar smokers.

"The evidence is clear that people who have stopped smoking cigarettes have lower death rates from smoking-related diseases than those who continue to smoke," Dr. Charles C. Edwards, HEW assistant secretary for health, said a preface to the report, sent to Congress Thursday and made public Friday.

HE CITED "substantial changes" in American smoking habits since release of the first scientific evidence linking cigarette smoking to health problems. The first surgeon general's report was dated Jan. 11, 1964.

"As a result of the continuing growth of scientific evidence on the hazards of cigarette smoking and the educational programs to disseminate this knowledge, millions of people have stopped smoking, and millions of others who would otherwise have taken up smoking have not done so," Edwards wrote.

The Tobacco Institute, an industry organization, said in a statement commenting on the latest conclusions: "For the first time in these annual reports HEW seems to have shifted at least slightly from its usual one-sided presentation of scientific evidence about smoking and health."

"THE CURRENT document contains repeated references to 'studies either partially or wholly inconsistent' with the 'scientific judgment' expressed a decade ago by an advisory committee whose report on smoking and health has been until now accepted by HEW without qualification.

"This certainly will be encouraging to the scientists, members of Congress and others who have recognized the inadequacies of previous reports."

The report said cigarette smoking is the major cause of lung cancer, a disease that in 1973 killed 72,000 Americans.

"Data from prospective and retrospective studies reveal an increased risk of development of lung cancer in pipe and cigar smokers compared to non-smokers," it said.

last May, said the grand jury recommended that the two men be released on their own recognizance following their surrender.

The jury heard from nine witnesses, including Farr, Bugliosi and Shinn as well as the remaining trial lawyers, Stephen Kay, Donald Musich, Paul Fitzgerald and Irving Kanarek. Kay and Musich are still deputy district attorneys.

Another key witness was William Pounders of the attorney general's office, who headed an investigation of the Farr case. The results of the investigation were never made public. However it was learned only last month that Kay had told investigators months ago about suspicious circumstances linking Bugliosi and Farr.

In a deposition taken in connection with a civil lawsuit, Kay said that Farr gave him a large manila envelope for Bugliosi and when he questioned Bugliosi about it later, the prosecutor flew into a rage and threatened to remove him from the Manson trial if he pressed the issue.

It was on this basis that Supervisor James Hayes called for the grand jury probe and was supported by his fellow board members. However, before the Hayes request was made, Older also asked for a grand jury probe into the situation. Older's own attempts to find out the names of the two who violated his gag order had been frustrated and, although the statute of limitations had run out, he pursued the issue.

I, P-T reporter pleads with bandits

'I tried to get them to give up'

By HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

I had made my telephonic police checks early Friday and was having my morning coffee in a cafe about a half block from the Flite Room, when two sheriff's units sped down Carson Boulevard.

Since that's my business, I jumped in my car to follow them.

Within 15 minutes I was cowering under a window trying to talk two desperate and frightened men into releasing two equally frightened hostages in an attempt to prevent four needless deaths.

And that's not my business.

I didn't know what I was chasing as I followed the two sheriff's cars, but I knew immediately what was happening when they stopped in the middle of the street and I saw officers with shotguns hiding behind cars — all surrounding a small restaurant-bar on the corner.

I had seen similar things before. Every police reporter has.

I hid behind one of the sheriff's units to ask what was going on, and he told me that there were two men inside holding two hostages. I backed around a corner to a gas station telephone and alerted my city desk.

When I came back to the scene for pictures, I was called by Capt. Ken Cable, commander of the Lakewood Station. I went over to the coffee shop on the corner which was being used as a command post. It was in a direct line of fire and just across a parking lot from the building under siege.

Cable said he had talked with the men through a window; they wanted to talk to a newspaperman. Would I be willing to talk to them?

We moved low along the building to a window in the back. The captain yelled that I was a newspaperman, and I stood up so they could see me through the window.

It didn't even go through my mind that they would shoot me — but I took my cigar out of my mouth as I started to talk.

They asked my name. When I told them, they said I was the one they wanted to talk to. I later found out that the city desk had talked to the guys and had given them my name. But at that time I was surprised.

I've never been in a situation where people have wanted to talk to newsmen — especially me.

"We want a car. We want the area cleared and we want to leave," they told me. When I asked about the hostages, they said they would take them along and drop them off a couple of blocks away.

I leaned around the corner to tell Cable what they said, and he asked me to find out if they'd exchange hostages. They said they would — but not sheriff's deputies. They wanted me.

"We wouldn't hurt you, Hal," one of the men said. I believed him.

When the captain and I got to the cafe, the telephone rang and it was the two guys inside. That's when they elaborated.

"Hal, if we get the car will you drive?"

I said "yes." The sheriff's officers said "no."

After more than 20 minutes of negotiating with Cable they asked to talk to me, and I tried to reason with them. I tried to tell them that if they would stick to the deal — release the hostages and come out unarmed — they wouldn't be hurt."

"I know they've turned off the air-conditioning and they're getting ready to rush us," one of the men said. "I think they want to kill us. . . I know they've got that tactical unit out there and I saw them in action on that SLA thing on television."

I tried to convince them this was different and they were facing only a simple attempted robbery charge, but they warned that if any tear gas was used the hostages "would go."

For almost an hour the three of us — Cable, I and the suspect inside — talked. I tried to assure him that I would do everything in my power to help them if they surrendered.

I really tried. If there was any way to get those hostages out of there, and there was anything I could do, I was willing . . .

My efforts didn't work . . . I hoped someone else's would.

In Lakewood Shopping mall faces study

By LARRY LYNCH
Staff Writer

A master plan two years in the works for prettying up Lakewood Shopping Center and adding more diversified drawing power is undergoing public scrutiny before it is set in semiconcrete.

The Lakewood Planning and Environment Commission expects to begin work Aug. 1 on what is sure to be a detailed review of the "Lakewood Town Center Redevelopment Plan Report" prior to public hearings and final adoption.

One person who has some serious reservations about detailed specifications inherent in any such plan is Joseph Eichenbaum, who runs the shopping center management company.

Eichenbaum's procedure for improving retail sales at the center has been to sift through the least productive store leases, trying to find replacements that will do higher volume in the same square footage.

This approach, along with some goading from city officials, has resulted in a $3 million Montgomery Ward entry, now in remodeling stages in preparation for an early 1975 opening.

IN CONNECTION with the Wards opening, Eichenbaum says his management company is about to spend "several hundred thousand" dollars on cleaning and landscaping the main mall. On another front, his leasing agents are out looking for a major hardware and home repairs outlet as the most likely addition to the center's mix.

The enclosing and air conditioning of the mall is a major project Eichenbaum is more receptive to than in the past. He says, however, that problems with cost and financing prevent him from committing himself "at this time."

What improvements Eichenbaum now has underway go in the direction suggested by the Redevelopment Plan Report prepared by consultants Koebig and Koebig.

The plan would lay out a more precise and comprehensive thrust, however.

"Although the town center has retained a solid economic position throughout the almost 25 years of existence, there is deep concern in the community that power and influence of the city core area may be on the decline," the Koebig report observes.

THE EFFECT of such a decline would be to erode the revenue base of the city government, which is heavily dependent on sales taxes.

Two factors underlie the concern, the Koebig report continues:

"One is the result of conditions within the study area, and the other competition generated by new shopping center development within the nearby cities.

"In general, buildings (have) lacked architectural compatibility and the functional inter-relationships between building groups was unclear."

Secondly, "the isolated character of various portions of the center... discourages pedestrian shopping."

"The Center is decidedly an auto-dominated area with almost 100 acres in parking and 55 acres in public and private streets... (accounting) for nearly two-thirds of the entire area."

The plan suggests that some very specific kinds of emphasis be adopted for 14 remaining "buildable areas."

"If the Lakewood Center will implement a modernization program and add recommended businesses and services, the center should be able to capture approximately 5.8 per cent or $154 million of the potential market ($2.6 billion by 1985," the report concludes.

Several kinds of new tenants are suggested. One, echoing Eichenbaum's current drive, would be "a large hardware, building materials and decorator supplies store which would cater to home remodeling, decoration and gardening needs."

General merchandise stores which might be sought are "I. Magnin, Liberty House, Walker Scott and Joseph Magnin."

COMMERCIAL AMUSEMENT and recreation facilities, "together with specially outlets and eating and drinking establishments, are crucial to the revitalization of Lakewood Center and to the alteration of its image from an older center to a dynamic, fun, shopping environment."

A guiding concern in the redevelopment plan has been the results of a shopper survey conducted by Development Research Associates for the city more than a year ago, but kept under wraps until now.

The survey indicated "approximately 70 per cent of the Center's patrons live in Lakewood, Paramount or North Long Beach, while a further 10 per cent are from Long Beach."

"The principal competitive facility at which these consumers shop is the Los Cerritos Mall."

"They believe that Los Cerritos is a nicer, more attractive and 'fun' shopping environment and that it has a greater variety of stores than Lakewood. However, they also think Los Cerritos is too crowded, and that prices are lower at Lakewood."

The report sees no demand for regional office space facilities in Lakewood's town center but suggests that development of eight-story apartments "would provide an alternate life style for local residents... who no longer care to maintain a home and a yard, yet prefer to remain in Lakewood."

Man convicted of strangle slaying

A Santa Ana Superior Court jury Friday convicted Robert Knoch, 26, of first-degree murder in the strangulation of 19-year-old Donna L'Homme in Garden Grove the night of Nov. 7, 1973.

Judge Kenneth Lac set sentencing for Aug. 1 at 1:30 p.m.

Knoch had claimed he was under the influence of cocaine and alcohol when Mrs. L'Homme was strangled and knew nothing of her death until sheriff's officers awakened him.

He showed no emotion at the jury's verdict, which was returned after three days of deliberation.

Testimony showed the victim's husband was in Orange County jail at the time of the slaying. Witnesses testified Mrs. L'Homme had dated Knoch on several occasions, with her husband's approval.

Her seminude body was found in the front seat of Knoch's car. She had been strangled with a belt.

L.B. pair appeals for aid

Swaziland - where families hunger so kids can study

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Students in Swaziland take school seriously.

That may be because school in the small southern African nation is neither free nor compulsory, according to Tony and Pat Beonde, a Long Beach couple teaching there as Peace Corps volunteers.

Their students at Mhlathane High School — who range in age from 12 to 26 — pay $15 a year for school fees and $22-$30 more for books and supplies.

That doesn't sound like much by American standards, but the average income of Swazi families is $100 per year, which happens also to be the annual fee that boys pay to live in the school dorms.

Most Swazi families make a living by selling crops, handicrafts and cattle.

"Many of our students suffer from protein deficiency and often come to school hungry," wrote Pat Beonde, a Long Beach State University graduate, in recent letters home.

"For all our students, school fees are a problem."

TO PAY THE FEES most students work after school or during holidays, but they can earn only 30 to 50 cents a day.

"Sometimes families will sell cattle to get the money for school fees, but they really need the cattle to supply food for their families," the Beondes wrote.

Mhlathane High School, attended by students from throughout Swaziland, is in a village called Pigg's Peak (population 1,500) located in middle of two large pine forest plantations in the northwest corner of the country.

Tony teaches science and biology. Pat teaches English and geography.

"In the afternoons we are busy with sports, music, plays and helping students with their work," the Beondes wrote.

Their schoolwork is roughly equivalent to that in junior high and high school grades in the U.S., but it's harder for the students because they must work in a foreign language—English.

Their native tongue, SiSwati, is only now becoming a written language, and SiSwati doesn't have words for many of the concepts they must master to pass their exams in the British-oriented education system.

One person the schools are expensive and noncompulsory is that there simply aren't enough teachers or schools. Mhlathane High School was built as a British primary school for 100 students before Swaziland won its independence in 1969. It now has 300 students.

"The school is filled to capacity and is beginning to show the strain of overcrowding," the Beondes wrote.

The Swazis' desire for education is one reason the Beondes hope Southlanders can help by sending them teaching materials. When they arrived at the school, the only teaching aids they found were a blackboard and some books.

"THE WALLS were bare when we arrived, but we continually sent away for any type of thing we felt we could use," the Beondes wrote. "Now the walls are covered with posters showing places the students didn't even know existed."

"But we still have a great need for books, games, puzzles and other types of learning materials."

In recent weeks some students became interested in music, but the school has virtually no musical instruments and music books, so donations of those items would help too.

Mr. and Mrs. James Young of Long Beach, Pat's parents, said Tony has just begun teaching woodworking classes and some small tools would help.

National Geographic Magazines are particularly coveted by students.

THE MATERIAL HAS to be sent in packages weighing less than two pounds if it's to go by air mail and arrive without delay. Packages of up to 40 pounds can be sent by regular mail, but they may not arrive for two or three months.

Packages can be sent to Pat and Tony Beonde, Mlabane, Swaziland, c/o Department of State, Washington D.C., 20521. Money donations, which can be sent by international money order, can go to the Headmaster, Mhlathane High School, P.O. Box 100, Pigg's Peak, Swaziland, Southern Africa. The money would go into a fund to help needy students, the Beondes said.

Coast chiefs to eye Todd shipyard work

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

A major renovation of facilities at Todd Shipyards in San Pedro will be considered by the regional coastal commission during its regular meeting at 9 a.m. Monday in the Long Beach Harbor Department's board room, 925 Harbor Plaza Drive.

The corporation, which employs some 3,000 persons, plans to rebuild two launching ways, install two new overhead service cranes and lengthen the ship outfitting berth, according to an application filed with the commission.

Two weeks ago, the firm was awarded a $155 million contract by the U.S. Maritime Administration for the construction of four San Clemente-class oil tankers.

That order brought to 16 the number of ships now under construction or due to be constructed by November 1979 at the landmark San Pedro facility.

A spokesman for the firm said the orders, which represent $500 million, include eight 89,700-ton tankers, four 25,000-ton tankers, and four 35,000-ton tankers.

The application before the coastal commission, part of the shipbuilding company's ongoing program "to increase the capability" of its Los Angeles plant, has been pending for several weeks.

First scheduled for public hearing June 17, the application has been twice delayed by lengthy commission meetings. It should, however, be heard on Monday, since it is only the third item on the massive agenda.

Other items carried over from the two previous meetings include an application by the Procter & Gamble Manufacturing Co., 1601 W. Seventh St., for the construction of two conveyor bridges from the plant to a warehouse across the street and separate applications for the construction of two apartment buildings in Huntington Beach.

The Procter & Gamble request involves construction of the bridges, planned to carry cases of soap and other products across Seventh Street, 17 feet above the roadway.

The coastal commission staff has recommended approval of the project, planned at a cost of $2.8 million.

The Huntington Beach construction scheduled for consideration includes application by El-Don Development, Inc., for a 4-unit apartment building at 315 18th St., and a request by Ken Cooper to construct a 12-unit apartment building at 212 18th St.

8 members named to hospital board

Eight new members have been appointed to the Bauer Hospital-St. Mary Medical Center board of trustees, Robert L. Irvin, trustee chairman, said.

The new trustees are: Pat Brennan, a secretary for a Long Beach orthodontist; Edward DeSantis, a Long Beach merchant; Albert E. Hiles, owner of Equipment Supply Co.; Eanor Boyd Hol-linger, daughter-in-law of the hospital's first chief of staff, Dr. Truman O. Boyd; Richard N. McCook, manager of the Bank of California at 444 W. Ocean Blvd.; Mary Ellis Carlton, an Independent, Press-Telegram columnist; Monte Davis, Los Alamitos, owner and president of the Glenn E. Thomas Co., and Randall L. Stricklin, president of Sheelar-Stricklin Mortuary.

Appeal to council Bike outlaws peril elders

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Bicycle riding on downtown Long Beach sidewalks, although illegal, has become so prevalent it is "frustrating, fearful and dangerous" for pedestrians, particularly senior citizens, the City Council was told Friday.

Now that school is out, the situation has grown worse, wrote Helen V. Rowe.

Senior citizens were forced to take their electric carts off the sidewalks, but the bike riders — particularly youngsters — are permitted to violate the city ordinance without reproach, Mrs. Rowe said.

She said elderly residents in the downtown area have "tried for years" to get some enforcement of the sidewalk ban against bicycles, but "no one will listen to us."

Some senior citizens are talking about picketing the City Council with signs reading, "Long Beach Is Unfair to Pedestrians" and "Long Beach Is Unfair to Old Folks," she said.

Mrs. Rowe cited several cases in which groups of five to 19 riders, primarily teenagers, sped along downtown sidewalks and, in two cases, struck pedestrians.

"YOU WOULD BE surprised at how many people have been injured on the sidewalk," she said.

Several years ago, when a similar complaint was made, Mrs. Rowe said, police cracked down on the bicyclists, and "for about one week it was wonderful." The situation didn't last long, however, she said.

Police don't like to enforce the ordinance, Mrs. Rowe said, often because they are criticized for "picking on kids."

"That is ridiculous," she declared. "Is it all right for kids to break the law, but not the old people?"

She urged councilmen, "Please, no more promises; please, some action."

8.1% L.B. pay boost rejected

Long Beach city sanitation workers represented by the Teamsters Union Friday night overwhelmingly rejected the City Council's 8.1 per cent wage increase and voted to strike if their demands are not met.

The action was taken at a meeting called to inform members of Local 572 that the council had turned down all proposals for wages and fringe benefits made by the unit.

Sam McAllister, the local's business agent, defined overwhelming majority as "better than 90 per cent of the membership."

The local represents 350 to 400 workers in the sanitation, harbor and parks and recreation departments, McAllister said, with 65 to 70 per cent of the membership drawn from the sanitation department.

The local is seeking a 10 per cent across-the-board pay increase, full coverage of dental, vision and prescription services for employees and their dependents, and an increase in sick leave over the present 12 days.

McAllister indicated that the next move is up to the city.

Earl Wilson Proud of his pride

NEW YORK — "I've got to get back to the animals," Warner LeRoy said, rising from the table at his Maxwell's Plum restaurant. He wasn't speaking of the Beautiful People or any night life folk who are sometimes referred to in those terms. "I've got a pride of 40 African lions, the biggest pride ever put together." The well-fed young man, son of Mervyn LeRoy, was understandably proud of his pride, a part of his creation, the 1500-acre, $10 million "Great Adventure" play place near Freehold, N.J., which will also boast 19 Siberian tigers, a singing elephant, lakes, four skydivers, three spectacle-type restaurants, a mile-long roller coaster in the water called a flume, and a ferris wheel 15 stories high.

THE new celebrity rage will be driving it from New York and Philadelphia. And a celebrity achievement will be to get a sneak preview before the invitational opening (4,500 invitations will be issued) on Sunday.

David Tebet, NBC vice president of talent, has already seen it — as he's a special friend. "I couldn't get him away from the lions," confessed LeRoy. "The reason it's the biggest pride is it takes a lot of testing to see which lions can be kept together without eating each other. We also have the only group of leopards — 15 of them."

I nervously asked about insurance. "There's never been a serious accident in a safari like this," he said. "We will have 85 rangers — animal people — making sure the customers don't roll down their windows or try to get out of their cars."

Rushing off, he said; "We've got a rhino that likes to have his stomach rubbed, a sable antelope called Rockefeller, and this singing baby elephant that hums musically after Encountering Miss G on the street, he shouted to her and, not recognizing her, she started to run. Then, reassured, she seemed flattered, and agreed. "But it's got to be before Aug. 2, when I go on the road with the show," said Bette Davis. We will flash you the actual meeting results.

Ex-gang member testifies

Juvenile justice system ridiculed

By NOEL SWANN
Our L.A. Bureau

A reformed juvenile gang member told a hearing into juvenile justice problems Friday the operation of courts in juvenile cases was like the TV show "Let's Make a Deal."

Douglas Newton, 20, told the hearing being conducted by Supervisor James Hayes that he had been a member of one gang or another since the time he was 13. He said he was one of the founders of the notorious Crips gang, an all-black organization operating in South Central Los Angeles.

Newton said he recently was arrested for being close to where a stolen car had been stripped down. He said he was urged to plead guilty in return for a one-year suspended sentence and three years on probation.

Newton told Hayes he has quit his former gang activity and formed a group known as L.A. Peacemakers aimed at trying to declare a truce among rival gangs.

Capt. Ed Swanson, head of the Youth Services Division of the Sheriff's Department, said his division was experiencing "a new type of violence" among youths. He said Sheriff Peter Pitchess termed it "violent violence" because it is so impersonal.

Swanson said schools are "virtually armed camps" because of threats of violence from youthful gangs.

He said the concept of returning youthful offenders to their communities in hope of rehabilitating them was "completely fallacious." To back his point, he said the recent sentencing of a hard-core youthful offender to state prison had had "a massive impact on gang members."

"Our intelligence sources say the state prison sentencing was the talk of all the gangs and that it produced a dampening effect," Swanson said.

On the other hand, he said, a youth who was released from juvenile facilities after spending three months inside for first degree murder became "a hero" to his peers. "He was a shining example of how to beat the system," Swanson said.

Capt. Clyde Cronkite, commanding officer of the Los Angeles Police Department Juvenile Division, said that during the past 10 years the juvenile justice system has "eroded to the point that it is now fostering, rather than preventing, the development of habitual juvenile criminals."

He also slammed the "revolving door" correctional policy saying hard-core offenders who have been returned to the community "constitute an infection source contaminating previously non-delinquent children."

He said the major reason for the current breakdown in juvenile justice was the lack of adequate personnel and facilities.

Judge William Hogoboom, presiding judge of the Los Angeles Juvenile Court, noted there had been a dramatic increase in juvenile court cases in the last three years. He said in 1972 there were 20,000 cases and that the projection for 1974 was 40,000 cases.

"To meet this caseload, we simply have to add more judicial positions," Hogoboom said.

The judge said decentralized court facilities could help, but added that a decentralized system was "harder to administer and more costly."

The Hayes' hearings continue today.

Wife slayer sued over child visits

The parents of a woman who was killed by her estranged husband, a former Los Angeles policeman, more than two years ago have filed a $1.3 million suit against him on grounds he won't let them see their grandchildren.

Raul and Gonzala Rodriguez, of Carson, charged that they have not been able to see their two grandsons since January despite repeated pleas to the boys' father, Manuel Pacheco, according to the lawsuit.

Pacheco was convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the shooting of his wife, Anita, 24, in November 1971.

The onetime Harbor Division officer served a jail term for the shooting, and in his absence the two youngsters were in custody of their aunt, Mrs. Vera Robles.

The lawsuit, filed last week, alleges that Mrs. Robles surrendered the children to Pacheco in mid-April, 1973, however, "due solely to threats made by him against the life of Vera Robles unless she agreed to give the two children up."

The grandparents separately are asking the court, through the suit, to force Pacheco to allow reasonable visitation to the grandchildren. In addition, the grandparents together are suing Pacheco for general and punitive damages in excess of $1 million plus court costs.

Diners' Club sued to allow cash discounts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Diners' Club is being sued to allow its subscribers to give discounts to cash customers.

Patty's Restaurant in Oakland filed a U.S. District Court suit Friday charging Diners Club with "antitrust violations."

Patty's complaint contended its credit card contract with Diners banned reductions for cash-paying customers.

Recently American Express agreed in Washington to allow merchants honoring its credit cards to offer discounts for customers paying cash. In April a San Francisco shoe repair operator, Jack Finckberg, filed a similar complaint against the Master Charge credit system.

Radio station offer sets riot

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Police quelled an angry crowd of 300 persons Friday after they waited outside a radio station for free tickets to a rock concert, only to learn the tickets were gone.

Proud of his pride

NEW YORK — "I've got to get back to the animals," Warner LeRoy said, rising from the table at his Maxwell's Plum restaurant. He wasn't speaking of the Beautiful People or any night life folk who are sometimes referred to in those terms. "I've got a pride of 40 African lions, the biggest pride ever put together." The well-fed young man, son of Mervyn LeRoy, was understandably proud of his pride, a part of his creation, the 1500-acre, $10 million "Great Adventure" play place near Freehold, N.J., which will also boast 19 Siberian tigers, a singing elephant, lakes, four skydivers, three spectacle-type restaurants, a mile-long roller coaster in the water called a flume, and a ferris wheel 15 stories high.

THE new celebrity rage will be driving to it from New York and Philadelphia. And a celebrity achievement will be to get a sneak preview before the invitational opening (4,500 invitations will be issued) on Sunday.

David Tebet, NBC vice president of talent, has already seen it — as he's a special friend.

"I couldn't get him away from the lions," confessed LeRoy. "The reason it's the biggest pride is it takes a lot of testing to see which lions can be kept together without eating each other. We also have the only group of leopards — 15 of them."

I nervously asked about insurance. "There's never been a serious accident in a safari like this," he said. "We will have 85 rangers — animal people — making sure the customers don't roll down their windows or try to get out of their cars."

Rushing off, he said: "We've got a rhino that likes to have his stomach rubbed, a sable antelope called Rockefeller, and this singing baby elephant that hums musically after

I'd Rather be Light

Today's Best Laugh: A friend of Kirk Kirkpatrick admits he overeats a little: "Last month my electric bill was $8 — just for the bulb in the refrigerator."

Wish I'd Said That: An actress once told Noel Coward, "I just talk the way I think" and Coward said, "Yes — but more often, I believe."

Remembered Quote: "Tomorrow is two days too late for yesterday's job."

Earl's Pearls: From the look of TV nowadays, claims John J. Plomp, there must be some studios somewhere that make nothing but reruns.

Tiger Lyons thinks Henry Kissinger is due for a rest: "He kissed Nancy good night and warned her not to leak it to the New York Times." That's earl, brother.

being fed. We'll make him an opera star. What name should we give him?" That was too easy. Mario Lanza.

PRODUCER Leonard Silman told Vicki Allen at La Maganette that Bette Davis, signing her contract to play "Miss Mofat" on a Florenz Ziegfeld desk in his home, confessed that she always wanted to meet Greta Garbo, also a friend of his. Encountering Miss G on the street, he shouted to her and, not recognizing him, she started to run. Then, reassured, she seemed flattered, and agreed. "But it's got to be before Aug. 2, when I go on the road with the show," said Bette Davis. We will flash you the actual meeting results.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL

CBS is negotiating with Sammy Davis to host a televised golf tournament ... Mohammed Ali was so amazed by Doug Banning's tricks in "The Magis Show" that he announced onstage, "I'll give you three times your salary to come in the ring with me against George Foreman" ... A dozen seats were held until curtain time at "Candide" for "Moshe Dayan and his party," who never showed up — an apparent hoax.

Character actor Bob Strauss is at University Hospital ... Cindy Adams was injured slightly when part of her bedroom ceiling fell on her. (Her husband Joey Adams said, "It wasn't a total loss — I'll get a comedy routine out of it") ... A NY travel agency is advertising "something different" — a one-day trip to the Miss Nude Metro contest at a N.J. nudist camp. (They add that "dress will be optional.") was the lack of adequate personnel and facilities.

Judge William Hogoboom, presiding judge of the Los Angeles Juvenile Court, noted there had been a dramatic increase in juvenile court cases in the last three years. He said in 1972 there were 20,000 cases and that the projection for 1974 was 40,000 cases.

"To meet this caseload, we simply have to add more judicial positions," Hogoboom said.

The judge said decentralized court facilities could help, but added that a decentralized system was "harder to administer and more costly."

The Hayes' hearings continue today.

Wife slayer sued over child visits

The parents of a woman who was killed by her estranged husband, a former Los Angeles policeman, more than two years ago have filed a $1.3 million suit against him on grounds he won't let them see their grandchildren.

Raul and Gonzala Rodriguez, of Carson, charged that they have not been able to see their two grandsons since January despite repeated pleas to the boys' father, Manuel Pacheco, according to the lawsuit.

Pacheco was convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the shooting of his wife, Anita, 24, in November 1971.

The onetime Harbor Division officer served a jail term for the shooting, and in his absence the two youngsters were in custody of their aunt, Mrs. Vera Robles.

The lawsuit, filed last week, alleges that Mrs. Robles surrendered the children to Pacheco in mid-April, 1973, however, "due solely to threats made by him against the life of Vera Robles unless she agreed to give the two children up."

The grandparents separately are asking the court, through the suit, to force Pacheco to allow reasonable visitation to the grandchildren. In addition, the grandparents together are suing Pacheco for general and punitive damages in excess of $1 million plus court costs.

Diners' Club sued to allow cash discounts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Diners' Club is being sued to allow its subscribers to give discounts to cash customers.

Patty's Restaurant in Oakland filed a U.S. District Court suit Friday charging Diners Club with "antitrust violations."

Patty's complaint contended its credit card contract with Diners banned reductions for cash-paying customers.

Recently American Express agreed in Washington to allow merchants honoring its credit cards to offer discounts for customers paying cash. In April a San Francisco shoe repair operator, Jack Fineberg, filed a similar complaint against the Master Charge credit system.

Radio station offer sets riot

YOUR HOROSCOPE

by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Begins a year of major challenge, in which special and general limitations are close enough at hand to require genuine sustained effort to transcend them. Late in the year you commence to prevail and rise well on your way to better things, taking your relationships with you. Today's natives bring a magnetic personality to bear along a straight and narrow way.

Aries (March 21-April 19): The minimum is the optimum this Sunday. Give others a rest from your energy and suggestions. Concentrate on your own concerns, perhaps future plans.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Relaxation and light recreation are in order once you've finished the Sunday customs of your community. See what you can do towards family felicity.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): It isn't necessary to always be settling a wave of excitement—settle down for serious thought. Invite old friends for a reunion but don't talk shop!

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You'll find plenty to do to fill your time, so no big schedule is feasible. Make your regular Sunday appearance punctually, however. Which you did!

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Letting well enough alone is half the solution today. Shared pastimes or a little sports competition offer satisfaction. Winning is less important than the achievement of skills.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Self-composure should be your goal.

Use the quiet, slow mood of this Sunday to help you listen to the silences within yourself, become more coherently yourself in so doing.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't just do something more of yourself! Meditation brings inspiration. Extra rest supplies the energy to bring plans into sharp focus next week.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Ongoing plans are to be pushed discreetly with a show of formality or haste. Fresh ventures are best postponed until current influences have run their course.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make this a social Sunday of low key activity. This gets you free of conflict. Let somebody else dominate the public scene, catch the omis for doing so.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): In the calm of Sunday routines comes profound guidance from your inner self—if you're receptive. Later hours find you busy getting ready for an unusual week.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Use every available moment to regroup your mental and emotional resources. Review your circumstances and what may come of them, how you can improve yourself.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Never mind being called lazy—it's better to sit around and think and talk than to overdo physically. Even light exercise has its drawbacks today.

Last draftee cool on Army Re-up? Sure, for a million

By THOMAS J. SHEERAN
FT. MONMOUTH, N.J. (UPI) — Pvt. Dwight Stone, the last man drafted into the U.S. Army, said Friday it would take a million dollars to get him to reenlist.
Stone, 25, of Sacramento, who was inducted June 30, 1973, 10 hours before the Selective Service Act expired, graduated Friday with 11 others from the U.S. Army Signal School's 40-week course in fixed radio transmitter repair.

"IF THEY gave me about a million dollars I'd reenlist," said Stone, who still has one year remaining of his two-year commitment. "Other than the million dollars, no, I wouldn't reenlist."

As the last draftee since President Abraham Lincoln first sent out the government's "greetings" during the Civil War, Stone holds strong feelings about the draft.

"I feel they will have to reinstate the draft," he said.

"Ninety per cent of the volunteers I've met are disappointed," Stone said. "A lot of guys were told one thing (by recruiters) before they came in and were told something else when they came in, but there's nothing they can do about it."

Stone said he has maintained a good attitude about the Army but Army life is not for him.

"BASICALLY the Army

PVT. DWIGHT STONE the last man to be drafted by the Army leaves his barracks at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., after graduating from a 40-week training program in communications. He's been assigned to Ft. Detrich, in Frederick, Md., and he can't wait to get out.

depends on two things—what you want and what you want to do," Stone said. "It's good for some guys but it's not my thing."

"Some of the rules and regulations are what you might call obsolete. Since I can't change them, I'll put up with them for another year," Stone said.

Stone, whose brother is a Vietnam veteran, said that, "No matter what happens you've got to have an Army" but, "I never would have joined because it's just not my trip."

Stone, who earned more than $5 an hour as a plumber's apprentice in his hometown of Sacramento now makes $363 a month.

Stone was originally drafted in 1969 but he failed his physical because of an injury received in a car accident. When Sacramento's Local Board 23 tried again to draft him in 1970, he failed to show up for the physical because he was trying to obtain an apprentice's deferment.

WHEN HE failed to show up for the third physical, Stone was indicted for violating the Selective Service Act.

He was given the choice of either accepting induction or being prosecuted.

"A decision is a decision," Stone said, referring to his decision to be inducted rather than prosecuted.

"Sometimes when I think what happened to me I have to consider myself fortunate. A lot of guys didn't go to the Army and are in Leavenworth. And a lot of guys who didn't go are looking for amnesty," Stone said. "I don't want to have to ask anyone for amnesty; I'm doing my time and when I do my time that will be it."

STONE says most of his Army friends have heard from news accounts that he is believed to be the last man drafted. "They kind of kid me a lot," he says, adding that he has only met 10 or 12 draftees since he entered the Army.

Stone's only run-in with his officers came recently when his commanding officer here tried to give him an Article 15—a fine and verbal reprimand—for refusing to paint the company barracks.

He told his platoon sergeant and commander he was allergic to paint. "They thought I was trying to ease out of it," Stone said.

When he refused to sign the Article 15, the commander tried to court-martial Stone, but the effort failed when a series of allergy tests at nearby Ft. Dix showed he did, in fact, have an allergy to paint.

"My commander hasn't said much to me since," Stone said.

Stone said his biggest disappointment in the Army has been the quality of the noncommissioned officers.

"They're supposed to be the bridge between the private and officers," Stone said, "but most of the NCOs I've met so far leave a lot to be desired. As far as leadership goes, I'd hate to be in combat with some of the NCOs I've met."

Censure of Jane Fonda bypassed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A prisoners-of-war resolution that once criticized actress Jane Fonda for her political opinions won approval from the California Senate in a watered-down version Friday.

The resolution by Sen. John Stull, R-Leucadia, now expresses the Legislature's "trust and belief in those who so courageously suffered at the hands of our country's enemies."

Originally, the resolution criticized Miss Fonda, describing her as part of "a small group of well-fed, secure, pampered, privileged persons (who) did visit North Vietnam and return to this country to spread the lies of our enemy."

References to the actress were dropped from the resolution, however, after Stull was criticized for attempting to limit her freedom of speech.

"I tried to point out that Miss Fonda's freedom of speech did not curtail mine," Stull said before the 29-0 vote approving his resolution.

The vote sent the measure to the Assembly.

Unemployment pay hike bill advances

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Maximum weekly unemployment insurance payments would increase from $90 to $100 under a bill passed by the Assembly Friday and sent to the Senate.

Assemblyman Waddie Deddeh, D-Chula Vista, authored the bill which passed on a 62-4 vote.

Briefly...

RELIGION

Over-sensational evangelism and over-political social action are the subjects of a sharp attack by a prominent German theologian in a discussion paper prepared for the upcoming International Congress on World Evangelization in Switzerland.

Peter Beyerhaus, professor of mission studies and ecumenical theology at the University of Tubingen, and author of "Shaken Foundations," puts it this way, in part:

"Two dangerous alternatives are offered to an eschatologically oriented evangelism. The first one is the development of a misdirected form of evangelism which in order to achieve striking visible results resorts to psychological methods like mass hypnosis, group dynamic experiments, personality cults, or even the radiation of para-psychological forces disguised as the work of the Holy Spirit. Some people try to attract their listeners by material benefits or by the promise of spectacular healing or earthly prosperity which will follow their conversion. There is no real blessing in such work."

"The other equally mistaken alternative is offered by Christians who substitute for the messianic Kingdom a utopian vision to be realized by political means. They repeat the error of the Zealots at the time of Jesus, who wanted to force the Kingdom of God to come by ejecting the Romans by the sword. The physical resources of the Christian churches do not suffice, of course, to remove all forces of oppression. Therefore one even advocates an alliance with the liberation movements within all non-Christian religions and ideologies. This new concept of 'mission' is today's greatest menace to the world-wide church. It has no promise of the Lord."

There isn't likely to be any fireworks among the assembled evangelicals over the second indictment. Even in the World Council of Churches there has been backlash about aid allegedly going to secular revolutionary liberation movements in the Third World. This led to a pledge by the WCC that no money goes to any groups which practice violence.

There may be some kickback on Beyerhaus' first strong premise: Pentecostal-charismatics, represented among the participants in the 10-day Congress, will take a dim view of his condemnation of achieving "striking visible results." They could also want to know what's wrong with "spectacular healing," for which a biblical case can be made in their view. It is the contention of Pentecostal "faith healers" such as Kathryn Kuhlman that they are just the agents for the Lord in the process—indeed, Kuhlman rejects the phrase "faith healer" for herself, for that reason.

These are areas which have increasingly troubled orthodox Protestant evangelicals in this country. The growth of the charismatic movement, with its emphasis on healing and the speaking in unknown tongues as "gifts of the Spirit," has presented some churches with the dilemma of how to relate to the movement, which is usually enthusiastic, and often youthful. Coexistence has not yet been achieved.

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS, the bane of newspapers, can also be found in the little church weeklies, often with chuckle-inducing results. We have seen references to a "scared concert," and to "Church Women Untied." Over at California Heights United Methodist Church, Rev. Ralph Johnson last week began his column with "Frank Boreham of Australia wrote a book with the intriguing title, The Other Side of the Hill." It came out a little more intriguing than Johnson planned.

REV. JOHN M. Berentschot of Bellflower Baptist, who served three years as president of the Conservative Baptist Assn. of America, reports that the annual meeting back in St. Paul was adressed by quite a group of notables, including Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, astronaut Jim Irwin and Rev. Dr. W. A. Criswell of Southern Baptist fame.

Hatfield challenged the 1,500 pastors and laymen to an active Christian compassion for the needs of those around us. "To follow Him who died for us is to love all whom He loves," the senator reminded.

AMNESTY FOR Vietnam war resisters, or draft dodgers, whichever your favorite characterization, comes up at most religious denomination conventions. The Southern Presbyterians found the topic a little rich for their blood. Despite a previous General Assembly's request for a position paper on amnesty, the assembly last week voted to return to committee a resolution recommending amnesty, so that a statement of the anti-amnesty position could be included with it. This may accurately reflect the division of opinion among delegates on the touchy issue, though it could hardly be called a "position paper." How about lack-of-position paper?

"NO MORE INNOCENCE" is the title of an article by Catholic lay theologian and writer Michael Novak, dealing with what Americans should teach their children about Watergate.

Novak tells the July readers of A.D. Magazine, joint monthly publication of the United Church of Christ and United Presbyterian Church, that it is misleading to tell the kids that they must recapture the higher morality of some mythical past.

The Founding Fathers didn't deceive themselves about the goodness of the American people, he says. "They didn't trust anybody. American democracy is built upon the premise that human beings are too corrupt to trust."

Our children, he says, "need to be told often and accurately about the power of evil. It is only when we grasp clearly the real evil of the world—the normal everyday routine reality of evil—that we are in a position to try to increase the small circle of truth, compassion and justice, even by a little."

He pictures America still dominated by Pollyanna-looking for the silver lining, trying to "prettify the realities of life," wanting "others to believe that we are a good people."

The real lesson of Watergate, Novak concludes, is to prepare our children "for a world in which injustice and falsehood and corruption occur with high regularity." He calls for a Christian realism which will uncover "one deception at a time, day by day...setting up systems of detection that penetrate public masks and hold powerful tendencies in check. The heart of Christian realism is don't trust anybody under 30, over 30, nor, least of all, ourselves."

By LES RODNEY
The big picture you have already looked at with interest dates back to 1926. Just two years shy of a half century. That's a long time ago even if this weren't the speeded-up space and technology age, in which history tends to get less than its due. (To a college student of 20, the Korean War, which ended two years before he was born, is ancient history, like back in some dusty "old times.")

Yet there will be some sense of continuity from the days of the old picture this Sunday at 3 p.m. in and around massively familiar First Christian Church at Fifth and Locust. Southern California's religious giant of those times, Dr. George Primrose Taubman, will be saluted in a memorial service formally dedicating his bust.

Rueben Anderson, present interim minister, who worked with Taubman and was himself pastor at the church from 1945-62, will preside at the one-hour observance, to which all are invited. "Dr. Taubman," he recalls, "was a silver-tongued orator whose ability to use the English language in a persuasive manner led countless people to follow him, and a great many to commit themselves as servants of the Lord Jesus Christ."

Dr. Taubman must have been all of that. Born in 1869 on the Isle of Man of naturalized American parents back for a visit, he came to Long Beach in 1915, and took over the small First Christian Church on American (Long Beach Blvd.) and Fourth, with 400 members. It grew fast as it moved to the old Laughlin Theater on Fourth and Pine, then into Municipal Auditorium, from where radio broadcasts of the services reached an estimated 300,000. The church at Fifth and Locust was started in '19, the roof crashed in '20 just before it was to be dedicated, and the job was finally done in '21, at the cost of $600,000, which took some fund raising in those days. (The church also was severely damaged in the '33 earthquake.)

But it was Dr. Taubman's Mens Bible Class which helped "put Long Beach on the map," as they said at the time.

Founded in '15 with 25 members, it grew to a regular average Sunday morning attendance of 2,000, and on special occasions was so monumental that it had to be held outdoors, and once drew 31,000.

There was a to-do at the time over whether Long Beach or Kansas City, Mo. could claim "the world's largest Mens Bible Class," and an impartial committee gave the duke to Long Beach. Twice a year, on Easter and Mothers Day, women were permitted to attend. But with or without women, the men at the Taubman Mens Bible Class were always properly and formally dressed, as the picture above will suggest.

Dr. Taubman contributed much to Long Beach in the way of community leadership, including selling bonds in World War I, helping start Pacific Christian College and heading up civic volunteer organizations. City officials will be present to offer their tribute. But it is as a once-in-a-city's lifetime religious leader that he will be remembered Sunday.

Main speaker will be Eugene Tischer, attorney and educational leader. Congregational singing and music will feature Taubman favorites. Soloists will include the church's minister of music, Mrs. Betty Knight, and Joseph Bjorn Dahl, song leader for Rotary who was a student of the late L. D. Frey, minister of music many years with Dr. Taubman.

Prof. Ralph Applebury, a retired minister who was a contemporary of Taubman, will read selections of scripture often emphasized by Taubman. A tribute will be presented by Hazel Kirk, who worked with Taubman in the areas of education and youth ministry for many years.

Mrs. Sadie Schmidt, a neighbor of the Taubmans when they lived in the California Heights area, and still an active member of First Christian, will also say a few. At the organ will be Mrs. Mary Foreman, who was organist during much of the Taubman ministry. Joining her at the keyboard of the grand piano and in a special song will be Mrs. Janet Aldridge, daughter of L. D. Frey.

Adding to the sense of continuity will be several guests from Bakersfield and Ventura who were active in the church during the big days.

Refreshments will be served following the memorial service.

Church women forum planned

The monthly forum of Long Beach chapter of Church Women United will be held Friday starting with coffee fellowship at 9:30 a.m. in Grant Chapel A.M.E. Church, 1129 Alamitos Ave.

Speakers will be Ted Hampton of Trailback Lodge for boys, and Mrs. Bernice Jimenez from Traveler's Aid. All are invited.

See Evangelical Congress reply to World Council

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

UPI Religion Writer

In less than a month, 2,700 Protestant evangelicals will converge on Lausanne, Switzerland, to see if they can possibly find a strategy for completing Jesus Christ's "great commission" — the preaching of the Gospel to the entire world.

Participants at Lausanne, known officially as the Congress on World Evangelization, will come from more than 150 countries and will represent almost every Protestant church group in the world.

Billy Graham, the world's most famous evangelist, is honorary chairman of the Congress and the U.S. delegation will be led by Dr. Oswald Hoffman, the famous radio preacher of "The Lutheran Hour."

Graham, in an article he wrote for Congress participants, said he believes "now is the time for evangelicals to move ahead and provide a leadership that has been so sorely missed by Christians around the world."

According to Graham, and other evangelical supporters of the Lausanne meeting, the "de facto leadership of too much of the missionary movement has been in the hands of those with diluted theological views."

"By the middle of the (20th) century," Graham said, "the gospel of personal redemption had become diluted." That watered-down theology, according to supporters of the Congress, is most evident in the World Council of Churches and they see the Lausanne meeting as a significant counterpoint to the WCC's meeting last year on "Salvation Today."

At Bangkok, the WCC affirmed a strong relationship between commitment to God and the social, political and economic struggles of people — especially those in the "Third World" — for liberation.

The evangelical magazine Christianity Today called the Bangkok meeting "a disaster" and said Lausanne was needed "to reaffirm the vertical dimension of man's relationship to God, the divine command to preach the Gospel to all men, and the need for personal conversion."

L.B. couple runs L.A. mission

Rev. G. Arthur Jacobson and his wife Lois, formerly of Long Beach, are now conducting the "Stripes of Healing Gospel Mission" at 423 E. Fifth St. in Los Angeles, and invite the support of their friends and others to help reach the needy of that area.

Services are held on Thursdays and Sundays, 7:30 and 7 p.m. respectively. Their mailing address is Box 209, Bell, 90201.

Vacation school

First Christian Church of Lakewood, 6236 Woodruff Ave., will conduct a Vacation Bible School July 8-19, from 9 to 11:30 a.m., for children ages 4-11. A donation of $1.25 is asked.

CHURCH SETTING OF DIALOGUE ON BOYCOTT

A unique group discussion on the merits of the United Farm Workers boycott action against some growers will be held Sunday at 6:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of St. Matthew Catholic Church, 672 Temple Ave.

The discussion will follow the day's last Mass, at which the priest in charge will invite parishioners to stay for the discussion with advocates of the boycott, and Elizabeth McMullen, UFW representative. The National Council of Bishops last November placed the hierarchy on the side of the embattled farm workers, unanimously backing their right to hold secret ballot elections for the union of their choice. The bishops called upon the Teamsters Union and growers to agree to this, and endorsed the consumer boycott of table grape, wine and head lettuce until such elections are held.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Story of a frying pan

A friend of mine, an easygoing non-stuffed shirt type of fellow, has a favorite frying pan which he has used on hunting trips for years. It's an old iron skillet that once belonged to his mother.

After the manner of iron skillet, over the years it got encrusted with baked-on accumulations which he couldn't scrape off. One day on a trip in the north woods his guide, a grizzled old outdoorsman asked him, "Do you want that frying pan cleaned up?"

"Why yes," he answered in surprise. The guide took the pan and laid it on the hot coals of the fire over which the two men had just cooked a meal. "Hey. If you leave it there empty like that it'll crack or something," he cried in alarm.

But the guide assured him, "That's just what you want to do. You watch."

BEFORE MANY minutes the pan glowed a dull red. As it got still hotter the red color grew brighter until it was white hot. Then suddenly—ping! A big crust flew off into the underbrush. More pings—and encrustations were flying in all directions. Finally the "pinging" stopped. The guide using a wad of cloth to protect his hand, pulled the pan off the coals and set it to one side. When it cooled the old skillet was lustrous black and shiny, just like new.

The rejuvenation of the iron skillet is a good allegory of what to do about things that become encrusted on our personalities—things like difficulties that seemingly can't be scraped off. And so we go on carrying problems which slow us down and deplete our energy. But like the old skillet they "ping" off when our minds and spirits are fired to incandescent heat by spiritual power.

I know a man whose success and happiness was frustrated by a serious weakness. He was considered outstandingly talented but he had slipped so far into alcoholism that he no longer could hold a job in his industry.

He consulted me, more to please a mutual friend than in any hope of actually being helped. He said, "I realize that if I could just quit drinking I could be a real success in my life. If I do say so—I have the ability. But liquor has got me down. You can't do anything for me. I'm licked."

"Congratulations!" I replied. "What do you mean congratulations? Didn't I just tell you I'm licked?"

"Sure I got it and that's why I'm congratulating you. You see when a person is humble enough to admit his lack of power to improve himself, then is when he is ready to be helped by the only one who can do a job on him."

"Meaning God," I said. "If you will really go for His plan for you, you can be cured of your weakness. For a starter, I suggest you come to church every Sunday for the next month."

He groaned, but he actually did just that. Well along about the fourth or fifth time he attended services, in my sermon I said, "Anybody here who will really reach for the divine power can be touched by it. If you really want it, raise your hand." In the silence that followed about fifty hands were raised. And to my amazement up went the hand of this problem drinker.

This happened many years ago—which has this advantage, I can testify his victory was permanent. The man stayed sober and went from one success to another, rising to a top position in his industry. Through an act of real faith and decision he was actually remade by a power that burned off his weaknesses.

Lutheran head asks awareness

By George Cornell
AP Religion Writer
The church's obligation is to clarify "the relationship between the heavenly vision and the earthly servanthood," says Rev. Dr. Robert J. Marshall, president of the Lutheran Church in America.

In a presidential report to the convention of the nation's largest Lutheran body July 3-10 in Baltimore, he says believers today need a sharpened awareness of the inseparable ties between faith and responsible work in the world.

"It is a time for vision to be matched with action," he said.

Not only that, he says, but with growing skepticism about political leadership and with an economic enterprise that threatens to deplete natural resources and allow some people to starve while others grow fat, Christians must recognize they are answerable to God for their social institutions, as well as their personal lives.

"In just such a time, there needs to be a vision that Christ is Lord of all," he adds.

Dr. Marshall, 55, an Old Testament scholar, former pastor, one-time seminary professor and head of the 3.1-million member denomination for six years, says the church today is "threatened, but still serving."

'Celebration' in local church

Group of high school age musicians from the Denver area, now on tour, will appear Sunday, 9 and 10:30 a.m. in First Baptist Church of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road. They include bell ringers, sound tracks and puppets, have cut two records.

Veteran Synod pastor retires

When Rev. Erich V. Oelschlaeger, pastor of Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Anaheim since 1965, conducts his final services Sunday before retiring, it will be 42 years since he preached his first sermon in Nebraska.

The Missouri Synod pastor's father was a pioneer pastor in western Nebraska in the early '30s, and his grandfather was a pastor early in the 19th Century in Missouri and Kansas.

UCC evangelism

One third of all United Church of Christ missionaries overseas are actively engaged in evangelism among persons of other faiths and ideologies, according to a study by Rev. Alfred C. Krass.

Orthodox, Catholics agree vs. abortion

Eastern Orthodox and Roman Catholic theologians meeting recently issued a statement unanimously deploring the U. S. Supreme Court's January 1973 abortion decision for "failing to recognize the rights of the unborn."

Inflation curb seen in returning to gold

Special To I, P-T

BERGEN, N.J. — Morris J. Markovitz says he believes the country is headed for disaster. It's not war, nor abuse of the environment which will be the cause — it's inflation. His solution is drastic. "We have to abolish the country's legal tender laws," said Markovitz, 26. "They're utterly meaningless."

Paper money — more exactly the continued expansion of the paper money supply — must cause inflation, Markovitz says. He adds that paper money is intrinsically worthless, having value only because the government says it does.

Salvation, Markovitz says, lies in a return to the gold standard, where paper money is backed by — and can be redeemed for — the precious metal.

The United States was on the gold standard until 1933. Since then it's been a crime for an American to possess gold.

Sentiment for a return to the gold standard is small. In most economic circles, it is considered a far-out, ultraconservative response to inflation.

Markovitz acknowledges the opposition: "A lot of people think it's a crackpot idea."

Nevertheless, Markovitz and a group of other men are determined to spread the gospel of gold, and the other day he and Howard Katz, a 35-year-old New Yorker discussed their crusade. The two were among the founders two years ago of the Committee to Reestablish the Gold Standard, and Katz is the chairman.

The two concede their plan would cause disruptions in American society, including an abrupt contraction of the money supply and good possibilities of a stock market crash, depression, and soaring unemployment.

"There would be a short period of discomfort," Katz said. "But if we don't do something, there will be total disaster. In the past, runaway inflation has led to anarchy and dictatorship."

"And right now, we're way the hell out on one big inflationary business cycle. We're headed for a depression that will make 1929 look like a Sunday school picnic."

Katz used to publish a stock market advisory letter and now devotes much of his time to the committee. Markovitz is a commodities analyst for a large brokerage house.

They argue their position with figures, charts, and examples gleaned from history, some of which doubtless would be challenged by the opposition.

"War and the abandonment of the gold standard are intimately related," said Katz, producing a chart which shows peaks of inflation occurring during the War of 1812, the Civil War, and World War I and II.

He said the Bank of England had been formed in 1694 to issue paper money so the king could finance war without having to obtain funds from Parliament.

The Bank of England was something like a forerunner of our Federal Reserve System, he said. The Federal Reserve issues money.

The position of the two gold advocates is that as long as the amount of paper money in circulation increases — which they feel is inevitable — its value decreases. Prices will go up, buying power will go down, and inflation will continue. They say banks and big businesses benefit at the expense of workers and the middle class.

"This is robbing people of their earned wealth," said Katz. "People can't put away money to protect themselves."

By putting the country back on the gold standard, the amount of paper money would have to correspond to the amount of gold available. The only way it could expand is if the reserve of gold increases.

"If you have a fixed supply of money, the sum total of all prices would remain the same," said Katz. "If the price of one commodity increased, the price of another would have to go down."

He says a limited supply of money would have given citizens a real voice in deciding if they wanted a war in Vietnam.

"They would have had to decide whether they wanted the money used for war or other things. The government wouldn't be able to use the surreptitious method of distributing additional worthless paper money to get involved."

Katz and Markovitz suggest that the gold standard be reestablished on an exact matching basis — that is that each dollar be matched by a dollar's worth of gold. This is much more severe than was the gold standard abolished in 1933. At that time only a percentage of paper dollars was backed by gold.

The price of gold on the international money market hit a high this year of about $130 an ounce. However, if Katz and Markovitz have their way, it would soar many times above that.

"The value of the dollar would have to be redefined in terms of the weight of gold," said Markovitz. "It's a very complicated problem that economists would have to work out."

He suggested that a different term instead of dollars might be adopted. For example, one gram (of gold) notes.

Katz said that to get the idea off the ground, the gold committee needs the support of a major political figure. "Politicians don't really understand economics," Katz said. "If we could just get one and educate him."

Meanwhile, they will continue their educational efforts through the committee newsletter.

Perry named LBED manager

A former Kaiser Aetna industrial developer, Edward A. Perry, has been named marketing manager of the new Long Beach Economic Development Commission, it was announced this week by Daniel H. Ridder, LBEDC president.

Perry, 37, will concentrate his efforts on a proposed 350-acre Westside Industrial Area bounded by Pacific Coast Highway and the Southern Pacific tracks, Los Angeles River and west city limits, said James C. Hankla, executive vice president of the agency.

"One of his major functions will be to deal with businesses already in the area, helping them to plan toward improving or enlarging their property," Hankla said. "He also will seek to develop rapport with industrial developers in the Southland and across the nation."

LBEDC, a coalition of Long Beach business, labor and governmental leaders, with offices in the Wells Fargo Bank Building, was created last year to help expand or bring new firms here. These measures in large measure stemmed from the closing of Long Beach

State University and took post-graduate studies at UCLA and Pepperdine University. He taught in several area secondary schools before turning to business.

At Kaiser Aetna, he was responsible for sale and leasing of properties at several major business or industrial locations. Earlier he was an industrial real estate salesman for Walker & Lee.

Delinquencies pat despite inflation

The recent runaway inflation appears to have had no appreciable effect on the regularity with which the American family pays its mortgage payments, that U.S. League of Savings Associations reported today.

The league said that for the first quarter of 1974, mortgage loan delinquency ratios at the nation's savings and loan associations were .82 per cent for the three month average. This is precisely the monthly average for the first quarter of 1973.

For 1974's first quarter monthly delinquencies were: January — .90; February — .71; and March — .85.

The league bases its delinquency survey on reports from approximately 900 representative savings associations. A loan is counted delinquent when payment has not been made within 60 days from the payment date stipulated in the mortgage. (All types of loans are considered in the survey — conventional, FHA and VA.)

The trade association pointed out that the delinquency ratio had risen slightly from the final quarter of 1973 when the average for the period was .78 per cent. This was an increase of only 4 basis points.

The league said that the low delinquency trend began in 1967 and loan delinquencies continue to amount to less than 1 per cent of the total number.

INDUSTRY WEEK

FRB chairman takes gamble

Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board has taken a tremendous gamble to curb spiraling inflation. Industry Week says that Burns and his colleagues recognize that their policies will cause casualties and a number of weakly financed companies will probably fail. In addition, the Fed is risking a recession next year, a liquidity crunch in the U.S., and is making trouble for banks in Europe.

But, the 70-year-old chairman has made a little progress if you believe early signs detected by hopeful Fed economists who think inflation may be slowing down. What's more significant, if Burns is wrong, the economy is in double trouble. That's because Burns is about the only person in authority left in Washington who has any influence in financial circles.

The banks are behind him and if Wall Street is not entirely happy over the impact of tight money on business expansion, at least brokers on the street respect Burns and heed him.

In fact, Burns is viewed in Washington as a kind of modern-day St. George in hot pursuit of the dragon of inflation. Moreover the publication reports, there is "no one else of stature left in the economic policy arena" with any chance to succeed. Even the influential Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., who usually can be counted among those balking at economic controls exercised by the Fed — is not opposing Burns.

IN BURNS' FAVOR, there are some rays of economic sunlight filtering through the overcast economic skies. In recent weeks, the growth in credit demand has slowed noticeably. With this ebb, interest rates have started to nudge downwards. At the Fed, economists claim they can detect a decline in inventory speculation and business borrowing to support it.

The question, though, is whether the Burns approach can survive next year's big round of labor negotiations. In 1975, the unions will be free of wage controls when they come to the bargaining tables and union leaders will be under pressure from the rank-and-file to make up for the comparatively small wage hikes allowed by Washington during the days of wage and price controls.

At present, Burns is getting some help as the slowdown in the economies of America's trading partners in Europe and Japan shift downward from their recent period of rapid expansion. Even given such "help," the Burns gambit of tight money could squeeze some corporations out of the credit market. They could be done in either by high interest rates or the complete lack of money to lend. Some bankers and businessmen already are calling for a "capital issues committee" — similar to the one set up during the Korean War and which allocated available funds. While Burns opposes this in favor of a free capital marketplace, he may not be able to resist indefinitely, maintaining his long-term credit restriction plan.

Realistically, some sectors of the economy are pleading for more credit, not less. The housing market is in a serious slump. Savings associations and mutual banks may find it particularly difficult to stay in business without money to lend for new housing. Would-be home owners in search of mortgage money are despairing.

OIL COMPANIES, TOO, are in need of capital to find and develop new energy sources. A like plight can be heard from steel companies and also from the petrochemical industry, among others. Banks, too, may have huge credit needs. The Fed already had doled out over $1-billion to keep New York's Franklin National Bank from going under, and rumors persist that other banks are in trouble. If Burns elects to bail them out, what would happen to his antinflation policy?

"The longer the Fed keeps applying the restraint, the greater the danger to all of these institutions," an observer said.

Still other pressures on the Fed stem from the so-called Eurodollar market in Europe. Dollars on deposit outside the U.S. now amount to a whopping $150-billion, and they are vital to the floundering economies of a half dozen Western European countries.

But a dollar squeeze in the U.S. leaves this market without new sources of funds — and the threatened collapse of a big Euro-dollar institution would create enormous pressures on the Fed to help it out.

Yet, economists ask, what is the alternative of the current Burns policy? Burns alone appears to have survived the credibility gap that has struck down other major economists whose predictions failed them, and Burns alone appears to have survived the collapse of confidence in the Nixon Administration's economic policies. The Administration, which does not control the Fed's policies, pledged a balanced budget for fiscal 1976 but its 1975 budget drips with $11-billion worth of red ink.

Alaska or Hawaii for $25 more!

Western wants return of popular triangle

LOS ANGELES — (BW) — Western Airlines has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board to approve a revised Hawaii-Alaska-California triangle fare, Arthur F. Kelly, Western's president and chief executive officer, announced.

The new triangle fare allows passengers an optional Hawaii routing for only $25 more than the cost of a direct roundtrip coach ticket between Southern California and Anchorage, tax included. Western's original triangle fare allowed the Hawaii stopover at no extra cost.

"The triangle fare has been extremely popular with Alaskans, too, since they can combine a business trip to the Lower 48 with a real change-of-environment vacation in Hawaii," Kelly said. "At the same time, it has helped us in promoting our Anchorage Honolulu route, which Western pioneered in 1969."

In May, the Civil Aeronautics Board suspended Western's original triangle fare, but then permitted a temporary extension until July 31, pending a revision by Western on certain points raised by the CAB.

"We still feel that the triangle fare is going to be the greatest air travel bargain available," Kelly said. "It provides an unheard-of opportunity for combining vacation and business travel."

The traveler using San Francisco, rather than Los Angeles, for one point of the triangle will pay $45 more than the roundtrip coach fare, tax included, between Anchorage and San Francisco.

Two stopovers will be permitted at intermediate points — for no extra cost — prior to return to the originating point. In the cases of passengers to or from Atlanta, Dallas, Denver, Houston, Minneapolis-St. Paul or New Orleans, three free stopovers will be allowed. Other stopovers may be made at a charge of $10 per stopover.

The triangle fare travel must be completed within 120 days. The triangle fare will not apply for travel during the heavy Christmas and Easter holiday periods.

The fare, as filed with the CAB, would be effective from Aug. 1 through Jan. 31, 1976.

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

All three major networks have now revised their fall schedules to conform with a federal court decision postponing until September 1975 the changes in the prime-time access rule previously ordered by the Federal Communications Commission.

Latest to announce its cancellations was ABC. That network is eliminating two of the five new comedy series it had planned to introduce in the fall — "Where's the Fire?" and "Everything Money Can't Buy."

"Where's the Fire?" was to have aired from 7 to 7:30 p.m. Sundays. The pilot starred Cliff Gorman, Mark Thomas and Johnnie Brown as firemen of Engine Company 32 and David Ketchum as Capt. O'Hara.

"Everything Money Can't Buy" had been scheduled for 8 to 8:30 p.m. Thursdays. It centered around an angel named Mr. Porter who went around granting wishes to deserving people. Jose Ferrer starred in the pilot.

ABC is shifting "The Odd Couple" to the 8 p.m. Thursday slot in the fall. It had been set for 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

The network's Sunday programming will consist of the new "Sonny Comedy Revue," a variety show starring Sonny Bono, from 8 to 9 p.m. and "ABC Sunday Night Movie" from 9 to 11 p.m.

EARLIER, NBC had announced the dropping of its fall schedule of two of the new shows it had planned to introduce — "Second Start," a half-hour comedy series starring Bob Crane as a 40-year-old insurance executive who gives up his job to enter medical school, and "Sunshine," a half-hour comedy-drama series starring Cliff DeYoung as a young musician raising a baby girl following her mother's death.

Eliminated from the fall schedule of CBS will be two of that network's four projected new comedy series — "Love Nest," starring Florida Friebus and Charles Lane as a couple in their 70s living in a trailer camp in St. Petersburg, Fla., and "We'll Get By," created by Alan Alda and starring Paul Sorvino and Mitzi Hoag as suburban New Jersey parents facing the generation gap.

No series now on the air were canceled as a result of the court decision affecting the prime-time access rule. And no doubt some of the series dropped for September will make it to the tube as midseason replacements next January.

As a result of the decision, the networks will present fewer children's and news specials in prime time than they had planned.

"ANSWER, AMERICA!," a 21-hour telethon to raise funds for the Democratic National Committee, will air on CBS (Channel 2) from 10 tonight to 7 p.m. Sunday, with a 30-minute break at 11 tonight for a news program.

More than 150 celebrities from the fields of motion pictures, television, sports and music will take part, along with a number of prominent Democratic political figures.

So much big-name talent will be on display that even many Republicans will want to tune in.

ADM. ELMO ZUMWALT JR., who is retiring as Chief of Naval Operations, will be interviewed on "Meet the Press" at 3:30 p.m. Sunday on NBC (Channel 4).

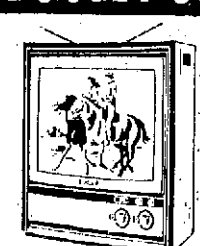

test. The Angels will play the Texas Rangers at 7. KMPC Airwatch observes its 15th anniversary Monday, and that milestone will be saluted with a 15-minute news special which the radio station will broadcast at 5:45 p.m. today and Sunday.

Dodgers dampen Westrum debut

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO
Early Friday morning Wes Westrum was happily at work in the peaceful wine-growing community of Lodi, tutoring a young catcher on the finer points of the game of baseball.

This serenity was shattered by a phone call from Horace Stoneham, the president of the San Francisco Giants. Horace asked Wes if he'd like to manage his team, since Charlie Fox, after 2½ stormy years, decided he'd had enough and obligingly deposited the well-known towel on Mr. Stoneham's desk.

Westrum gratefully accepted. But after one look at his new team he probably wishes today he was back in Lodi.

Friday night the Dodgers peppered the Giants, 11-3, but not without a good deal of help from their hosts.

The Giants contributed five errors, all of them costly, as the Dodgers defeated their arch-rival for the sixth time in a row.

The loss, the Giants' 18 in their last starts and seventh in their last eight, left them only one game out of the basement in the National League West. The Dodgers, who have now won six of their last seven, managed to increase their lead in the West by another half-game and now lead Cincinnati by 6½ games.

Tommy John earned his 11th win in 13 decisions. But it was Mike Marshall, appearing for a record ninth successive game, who completely halted the Giants.

He took over in the seventh and permitted only two Giants on base, for his 10th save. By appearing in nine games in a row, he joins Elroy Face, Barney Shultz and Tom Dukes in the record book. In all likelihood he'll have the record to himself after today's game. Asked if he'd be ready to go again today, Marshall smiled.

DODGERS OF DAY

STEVE GARVEY drove in three runs and BILL RUSSELL had four hits in 11-3 victory over Giants.

and said, "Right after I pitch batting practice."

Steve Garvey, as usual, propelled the Dodgers' offense. He clicked off a double and two singles, good for three runs batted in. That increased his major league RBI lead to 61.

More than that, he's batting .455 in the 11 games against San Francisco (20-for-44) with 14 runs batted in and five home runs.

Joe Ferguson got the Dodgers' only homer, a two-run shot in the top of the ninth. It was Fergie's ninth of the season and third in the last two games.

But by then, through the grace of the Giants' faulty play afield, the Dodgers already had a bulging lead.

Trailing 3-2, they whipped off four runs in the seventh (two runs unearned) and three more in the eighth (two unearned) when the Giants committed three errors.

The Dodgers' best plays were grounders to Dave Kingman, the man Westrum said, flatly, was going to be his third baseman. After the former USC star threw away two balls for errors and made two other questionable plays, Westrum retracted his stand, saying, "There might be a change or two after all."

Bill Russell, responding well to his days of rest, pounded out four of the Dodgers' 14 hits.

It made John a winner for the 11th time as Marshall pitched three scoreless innings to finish.

Asked about tying the record for durability, Marshall said, "Certainly it's a milestone. But statistics are for the press and the fans."

Winkles shoulders the blame

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

It was a day unlike any other for Bobby Brooks Winkles of Tuckerman, Ark., Friday.

He awoke in his spacious and spanking new hilltop abode overlooking San Clemente and the sea to the realization he was no longer employed — no longer the field general of the Angels.

And no longer in baseball, the game that has been his heart and soul and livelihood for the past 23 years.

It was a day of high comedy relief, of sympathetic phone calls and business propositions, of friends stopping by to haltingly express their dismay at his sinking fortunes and it was a day of at least one angry absurdity.

At approximately 3 p.m. a neighborhood realtor knocked on the door and inquired if Winkles wanted to sell his handsome $74,000 home.

"Hell," Winkles said, slightly irritated, "my body is still warm and the buzzards are out already."

Winkles sat on his outdoor patio, gazed out at the empty expanse of the Pacific and said he had received "about 200 phone calls and two business propositions — one in Phoenix and one in Dallas and neither of them baseball oriented."

Most of the calls, he said, were sympathetic and so was a television repairman who dropped by. When he spotted a do-it-yourself barbecue assembly kit stacked in a corner, he completed that job for Winkles.

Quoted Thursday as saying he was fired because he couldn't handle Frank Robinson, Winkles admitted that was true but added, "I'm not blaming Frank for that. It was my fault I didn't handle him right."

"I'm not going to sit around and blame other people for getting fired. I did some damn stupid things."

Winkles said it was unlikely he would return to college coaching because "they couldn't afford me."

He was making $35,000 in his second season as the Angel manager, a figure comparable to what he received at Arizona State. But $18,000 of that came from extra endeavors.

The only way I'd stay in baseball is if I got another managing job or a coaching job. Under no circumstances, he declared, would he return to ASU.

"It just wouldn't be the same," he said.

Winkles assumed a nice guy posture with the Angels but insisted it will be different if he ever manages again.

"Basically I'm a disciplinarian but I took an easy-come, easy-go approach with the Angels because I figured they were professionals and that everybody was out to make $100,000 in his lifetime. I was looking at things through false eyes. "I'd be more critical and outspoken," he continued, "and I'd have to be more distant with my players. I found you can't kid and joke around with the pros like you can the college kids."

Winkles admitted there were strained relations with some of his players and said he felt "not every player gave me his all when things went bad."

During a meeting in Detroit, Winkles said he got up in front of the team and said he had requested the trades of Robinson, Sandy Almar and Rudy May. Only May was dealt away.

"That wasn't a smart thing to do," he admitted. "It only served to further strain relations."

"But I think if I'd done a better job of handling Robinson I would have kept my job. We just didn't get it together after last year and it was my job, as the manager, to go to him."

Of Robinson, Winkles said, "He should be managing in the major leagues right now."

Winkles reported that general manager Harry Dalton seldom talked to him in the four weeks preceding his firing and that he "began to feel insecure when the trading deadline passed and nothing happened."

"I really got the tipoff Wednesday in Oakland when I walked into the Hilton Hotel and saw Gene Autry, Bob Reynolds and Charlie Finley having a drink."

"Besides," he laughed, "I felt the players knew something was up because they were starting to let their hair grow."

Winkles said he learned of his firing at 11 p.m. Wednesday night.

"Harry told me he was sorry I wasn't successful," Winkles said. Then he had a word for his former boss.

"I'm not a failure yet," he said.

Capra wins as Braves, Reds split

ATLANTA (UPI) — Dusty Baker's homer with one out in the 10th inning gave the Atlanta Braves a 1-0 victory in the second game and brought Buzz Capra his ninth consecutive win Friday night after the Cincinnati Reds won the opener, 6-5, in a contest nearly declared forfeit because of irate fans who showered the field with "give-away" Frisbees.

Baker, who had snapped out of an 0-for-28 slump with a two-run single in the ninth inning of the first game, connected off Don Gullett, who had allowed only seven hits and three walks over the first nine innings while matching scoreless innings with Capra.

Capra went the distance for Atlanta, allowing only three hits, and lowered his league-leading earned run average to 1.32. He

Cubs win in 18, then lose to Expos, 15-0

MONTREAL (AP) — Jerry Morales tripled home Don Kessinger in the 18th inning Friday night, giving the Chicago Cubs an 8-7 victory over the Montreal Expos in the first game of a two-night doubleheader and breaking up the longest game of the 1974 major league baseball season.

The Expos gained a split by routing the Cubs 15-0 in the second game.

breaking it open with six runs in the third inning. Dennis Blair stopped Chicago on just two hits and Ron Hunt drove in five runs and Jim Cox and Tim Lincecum delivered three apiece.

The four-hour 55-minute, 18-inning marathon was the longest game ever played at Jarry Park in Montreal's six seasons in the National League. The Expos sent it into extra innings with a run in the ninth on a single by Ron Hunt, two passed balls by Cubs catcher Steve Swisher and a wild pitch by Burt Hooton.

The teams then struggled through eight scoreless innings before the Cubs managed to score off Ernie McAnally.

Chicago took a 2-0 lead in the first on a run-scoring single by Williams and a bases-loaded balk by Montreal starter Mike Torrez, but the Expos came right back for five runs in the bottom of the inning, Ron Fairly's grand slam being the big blow.

Fresno girl, 16, sets swim mark

Combined news services

SANTA CLARA — Heather Greenwood of Fresno got the Santa Clara International swimming meet off to a flying start Friday by winning the women's 400-meter freestyle in a world record time of 4:17.33.

The 16-year-old Hoover

High School senior led from the opening horn and won by a body length over Shirley Babashoff to better the world mark of 4:18.07 set by Keena Rothhammer in 1973. Miss Greenwood's best previous time for the distance was 4:20.20 last year in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

"I heard everybody yelling on the last lap, so I knew I must have been doing pretty good," the excited teenager said.

Miss Greenwood, a 1976 Montreal Olympic hopeful, had splits of 1:01.50, 2:04.62 and 3:12.10 enroute to her record-breaking swim.

Wearing a new "rub-bolastic" fabric swimsuit, Miss Greenwood said the almost see-through outfit may have contributed to her performance.

"I don't really know if it did, but it didn't hurt any," she said.

"Rub-bolastic" suits, according to swimming experts, is so light it serves almost as a second skin.

Rain plays havoc at Wimbledon as U.S. aces win

Combined News Services

WIMBLEDON, England — Jimmy Connors and Arthur Ashe, men with opposing views about the game of professional tennis, Friday gained the last 32 of the men's singles at rain-sodden Wimbledon with victories as contrasting as their temperaments.

Connors, the third seed from Belleville, Ill., defeated Australia's Phil Dent, the man he beat to win the Australian title back in January, 5-7, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 10-8, while Ashe, the eighth seed from Miami, Fla., nipped muscular Russian Teimuraz Kalkulia, 6-1, 6-4, 6-3.

For the third successive day, rain played havoc with the program and referee Mike Gibson, a man who always retains his cool, admitted "I'm worried."

With the tournament running nearly 180 games behind schedule, the committee took the unprecedented step of ordering play to start at two hours earlier than normal today and Monday.

Not all the 14 courts were playable and of the 72 matches scheduled, only 10 were completed, ironically under clear skies.

Tony Roche, tipped as the heir apparent to double grand slammer Rod Laver before a nagging elbow injury threatened his career, finally got his match completed when he defeated Australian countryman John Alexander, 8-6, 6-4, 4-6, 8-9, 6-3.

It took the pair 74 hours to complete the match which must be some kind of record. It certainly was the longest singles match played at Wimbledon.

The normally jocular Roche was in no mood for jokes when it was all over. "It's no good, period," he said.

Connors, the joint U.S. No. 1 with Stan Smith, had a tremendous struggle to get by Dent, who did his own cause no good by serving 14 doublefaults, the final one to put himself love-40 in the 16th game of the fifth set. He saved one break point but Connors took the next and then wrapped up the match at his second attempt after having failed to put it away in the 10th game by electing to stay back.

"I think I played as well today as I can. Phil played his best and brought out the best in me. It showed me how well I can play and maybe I can play this well again," Connors said afterwards.

Dent said he found it difficult to move on court.

"It was one of the slipperiest I've ever played on," he said, "and I've played a lot on grass. I was trying to keep Jimmy back. I didn't want him hitting winners off my

Perry nears record, wins 14th in row

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gaylord Perry fired a three-hitter for his 14th consecutive pitching victory Friday night and the Cleveland Indians edged the Boston Red Sox, 2-1, when George Hendrick doubled home Leron Lee from first base with two out in the ninth inning.

Perry's triumph left him two short of the American League mark for consecutive victories in one season shared by four pitchers. The major league record is 19 in a row.

Boston's Dick Drago, 5-3, matched Perry until he walked Lee on a 3-2 pitch with two out in the ninth. Hendrick then worked the count to 2-2 before drilling a shot to right-center as Lee raced home before 33,020 fans.

Perry, who suffered his only defeat of the season on opening day, walked two and struck out eight. All three Boston hits were singles as the tall 35-year-old right-hander boosted his lifetime mark against the Red Sox to 11-1.

The Indians took a 1-0 lead in the fifth inning when Charlie Spikes hit his 11th home run of the baseball season. Perry gave up his first walk in the sixth and it led to the tying run. Rick Miller drew the walk leading off the inning, was sacrificed to second by Rick Burleson and scored on Cecil Cooper's single.

Little Leaguer has a big heart — and how!

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Not only did Brian Dujardin get up to bat, he got a hit.

He used to sit on the sidelines, and just a year ago he was lying in a Birmingham, Ala., hospital bed, recovering from open-heart surgery to fix a congenital defect.

His doctors said then his heart was exhausted. It's not. Listen:

If Wes Westrum isn't rehired as Giants manager for 1975, tab San Francisco native Frank Lucchesi for the job. The former manager of the Philadelphia Phillies is now one of Billy Martin's coaches at Texas...

In accepting congratulations on his interim appointment as successor to Charlie Fox, Westrum said, "I'd like to stay on as the club's pit next year. The best way to do that is to finish well," he said. "We've got a good bunch of guys and let's hope we can turn things around a little..."

Fox, the target of heavy criticism from San Francisco area media, said in a prepared statement: "With the club losing, I felt that for the good of the organization, I should step down and take over another capacity, which I am doing as major league scout. I feel like General Patton when they took his troops away from him..."

Fox tossed it in a day after his superstar rightfielder, Bobby Bonds, said "I'm sick of hearing things about Charlie. It's not his fault we're losing. I feel it's more my fault than his..."

by specialist Steve Feneault in the ninth, was his sixth in 10 decisions.

The Angels were also shocked by the performance of Toby Harrah, who bears no physical resemblance to Jeff Burroughs but who is beginning to look like him.

Eight days ago, Harrah had hit three home runs. Today, he owns nine. Harrah hit one out of the park for the final Ranger run in the eighth inning after they had broken open a tight 2-1 game with a pair of runs in the seventh.

Kings beat Hawks, 5-3

By CHUCK MEDICK

The Long Beach Nitehawks, though still in first place, let one get away Friday night as the Camarillo Kings scored five runs in the ninth for a 5-3 win in Western Softball Congress action.

The Hawks scored twice in the third when Ralph Smith walked, stole second, went to third on an error and scored on a wild pitch. Dayle Kamm then walked and Bob Willis doubled him home.

All was going smoothly for starter Ed Bentley until the ninth when two singles and a walk loaded the bases and brought in reliever Bob Todd. Pinch-hitter Greorge Kinder greeted him with a bases-clearing double and Todd tossed in a wild pitch for another run.

The Hawks now have a 18-5 record and must meet the on rushing Lakewood Jets Sunday at 7 p.m. at Mayfair Park.

Meanwhile the Jets travel to San Bernardino for a 7 p.m. doubleheader tonight.

SOFTBALL FIRST FOR NEW ANGEL SKIPPER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dick Williams will warm up for his return as a major league manager Sunday when he guides one of the teams involved in a charity softball game at Hartford, Conn.

Leading the other team in the softball game will be Casey Stengel who managed a few teams during his days in the majors.

For Williams, however, the real thing will take place Monday night when he assumes his new role as manager of the Angels and leads the team against the Oakland A's, the team he led to two successive world championships before quitting last October.

"I'm quite elated," Williams said after it was announced the Angels hired him to replace Bobby Winkles. "I said it would have to be an outstanding offer and it was. It's the best I've ever had. It was something I just couldn't turn down."

"The club is better than its record indicates," said Williams, referring to the Angels' last place standing in the American League West.

Campaneris hero Oakland romps past Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Bert Campaneris sparked a pair of big innings with a run-scoring triple and single and scored twice Friday night, pacing the Oakland A's to a 7-1 romp over the Kansas City Royals.

Glenn Abbott (1-1) scattered six hits as the A's won their seventh game in their last nine starts.

Campaneris, who had four of the A's 14 hits, ignited a three-run third inning and a four-run fifth before 32,400 fans, the largest crowd of the season in Kansas City this season.

The A's smashed four successive hits in the third against loser Nelson Briles (0-2).

Billy North singled and scored on Campaneris' triple. Sal Bando followed with a run-scoring single and tallied on Reggie Jackson's double. Jackson's RBI was his first since June 10.

Oakland put the game out of reach in the fifth.

North singled, stole second and scored on Campaneris' single. Jackson was walked intentionally and Campaneris moved to third when Jackson was forced out.

Gene Tenace, Angel Mangual and Dick Green followed by drilling three consecutive run-scoring singles against reliever Gene Garber.

Oliva's hot bat helps Twins rip White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Tony Oliva collected four hits including a pair of home runs, and Harmon Killebrew hit a two-run homer, powering the Minnesota Twins to a 10-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Friday night.

The triumph was the third in a row and fifth in the past six games for the Twins, whose manager, Frank Quilici, reportedly had been given a "win or else" ultimatum last week by owner Calvin Griffith.

Oliva singled and Killebrew doubled in a four-run first inning that was capped by Steve Braun's two-run triple. Oliva crashed his eighth homer of the season to lead off the third inning and then hit a two-run homer in the fifth to knock out White Sox starter Wilbur Wood, 12-9.

Steve Brye singled home a run in the sixth and Killebrew slugged his sixth homer of the season and the 552nd of his career in the seventh inning following a single by Oliva.

Oliva now has four home runs in his last three games and six in his last 10. The Twins' designated hitter raised his average 12 points to .315.

Walker makes first A.L. start winner

DETROIT (UPI) — Luke Walker pitched six strong innings in his first American League start Friday night and, helped by a 14-hit attack, hurled the Detroit Tigers to a 9-7 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Walker (3-0) had things well in hand until the seventh inning, having given up only a leadoff home run to Bobby Mitchell in the fifth, his third of the season.

By that time the Tigers had a 6-1 lead and John Hiller was brought on in relief after Robin Yount doubled home two runs in the seventh. Yount scored on a sacrifice fly by John Vukovich.

Detroit hiked its lead to 9-4 in the seventh when Al Kaline tripled home a run then scored on a sacrifice fly by Aurelio Rodriguez.

The Tigers added a third run in the inning on a single by Gene Lamont.

Hiller was rocked for three runs in the eighth, two scoring on George Scott's eighth home run of the season and the other when Deron Johnson fol-

Weiskopf only Western Open golfer under par

CHICAGO (UPI) — Tall Tom Weiskopf dropped an 18-foot birdie putt on his 17th hole Friday for the sixth sub-par round of the day in the $200,000 Western Open to seize the mid-point lead with the only under par score in the field.

Weiskopf, with a 70 for the day and a 141 for two rounds, was the only player in the afternoon half of the field who could improve on par. He earned a one-stroke lead over Al Geiberger, who shot his second successive par round for a 142 total. Everyone else in the field was over par.

Weiskopf, who said he "felt like I had a few bad shots, but I hit the ball pretty well," went over par on two of his first three holes, then birdied three of the next four to turn one under par. On his 13th hole he went into a trap and went back to par until his birdie putt on the par-3 17th hole of his round.

"I enjoy playing this course because it's a lot of challenge," Weiskopf said of the 7,002-yard, par-71 Butler National Golf Club course. "It's a very exacting golf course. You've got to play the shot that's required. If you're playing well, it's a lot of fun."

Geiberger went over par twice on his first nine, missing the green on both holes, but he got back even on the second nine when he dropped a 35-foot birdie putt and then chipped in from 25 feet for another birdie.

Billy Casper, a four-time Western winner and the defending champion, had a 78 and failed to qualify for the final two rounds with a 156 total, 14 over par.

Kathy's 67 tops LPGA tourney

MONTREAL (UPI) — Kathy McMillen fired one of the finest rounds of her four-year career, a six-under par 67, for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $60,000 Peter Jackson Ladies Classic Friday.

The 24-year old from Brandon, Fla., who has yet to win a Ladies Professional Golf Assn. tournament, toured the Candiac Golf Course with six birdies and 11 pars for her 67.

Four players were tied for second with five under par 68s—Betsy Cullen of Tulsa, Okla., Judy Kimball of Sioux City, Iowa, Carol Ko Skala of Eugene, Ore., and Sandra Palmer of Fort Worth, Tex.

Miss Skala had eight birdies, but bogeyed three holes. Miss Kimball had only 22 putts in the first round, the best in the field of 82 pros and six Canadian amateurs.

Laura Baugh of Long Beach shot a 74.

Another tennis league?

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A man by the name of J. William Goff, saying the time is right for another pro tennis league, announced the formation Friday of the National Tennis League.

Apparently oblivious to the empty seats that have become synonymous with World Team Tennis, Goff said his league would begin play with 12 teams next May.

Goff, one of the few people who have seen World Team Tennis matches, said the "fan reaction" convinced him another league would succeed even though the success of WTT hardly is assured.

"The fan reaction at a match just grows and grows and grows," he said. "As far as I'm concerned the excitement factor of the sport ranks just after hockey and basketball and certainly exceeds that of football and baseball."

"Our national survey shows that the people want it. The team concept is here to stay as part of the booming tennis interest now generated in the United States."

World Team Tennis, the first attempt at a professional tennis league, started play this spring and even giving free tickets in sizeable numbers, average attendance barely has exceeded 2,000. Even though there are 16 teams in WTT, 20 percent of the league's attendance has been generated by the road appearances of Billie Jean King—most of it on her first visit to league cities.

Goff, who claims he was one of the founders of the American Basketball Assn., said franchises have been awarded to groups in California, Arizona, Florida and Missouri and most likely will go to Ohio in the near future.

He said play would run from May to August and would be scheduled not to conflict with any major tournaments.

Motor Patrol bids to hike Harbor lead

It's scramble day in the American Legion's Harbor League with everyone trying to move up one notch at the expense of his competitor.

Motor Patrol, still holding a solid grip on first place, takes on upset-minded Alamitos Bay in the opener of a Blair Field doubleheader at 11 a.m. North Long Beach and Peterson, each going nowhere, wind it up at 1:30 p.m.

Still a darkhorse, Lakewood travels to Whittier's York Field for a 1:30 contest with Whittier's Whites.

Interest will be centered at Harbor College when San Pedro hosts the Whittier Golds. Both still have a shot at catching Motor Patrol.

Games today
Motor Patrol vs. Alamitos Bay, Blair Field, 11 a.m.
North Long Beach vs. Peterson, Blair Field, 1:30 p.m.
Lakewood vs. Whittier Whites, York Field, Whittier, 1:30 p.m.
Whittier Golds vs. San Pedro, Harbor College, 1:30 p.m.
Carson Clerks vs. Shus, Millikan High, 1:30 p.m.

Mickey Walker, who slugged his way to fame as the champion of two boxing divisions, lay near death Friday and was given the last rites of the Catholic church in Perth Amboy, N.J.

Walker, 72, has been hospitalized with Parkinson's Disease, anemia and arterial sclerosis.

Police found Walker lying in a Brooklyn gutter last April. The former fighter at the time didn't know his name. Although in his youth Walker earned a reputation as a heavy drinker, friends say he hadn't had a drink since 1938.

He held the welterweight and middleweight titles at various times from 1922 through 1929.

THE NCAA was investigating Friday an illegal $500 payment to a high school basketball prospect recruited by Western Kentucky.

The violation was reported by the school's president, Dr. Dero Downing, who said that assistant Ralph Baker has been relieved of all coaching duties.

BOBBY Unser and A.J. Foyt are 5-1 co-favorites to win Sunday's $400,000 Schaefer 500-mile auto race in Pocono, Pa.

Unser, winner of the Cal-500 and runnerup at Indianapolis, will start in the pole position.

FORMER college and pro basketball coach James (Babe) McCarthy was listed in satisfactory condition Friday in Tupelo, Miss. after his second operation for cancer of the colon.

McCarthy coached at Mississippi State from 1955-65 and more recently with the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Assn.

A SENATE passed resolution expressing congressional support for a bid by Lake Placid, N.Y. for the 1980 winter Olympics has been approved by a House subcommittee — with a condition that the environment not be hurt.

The proviso that the Winter Olympics not violate any laws now protecting the Adirondack Park's environment was added before the House Foreign Affairs Committee approved the resolution by voice vote.

EL SEGUNDO driver John Morton will defend his Mid-Ohio Goodrich six-hour challenge title today in Lexington, Ohio on the International Motor Sports Assn. series.

THE AAU announced Friday a team of 12 high school basketball players from the U.S. who will depart Sunday for an eight-game tour of four European countries.

Soccer teams nursing injuries in World Cup

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—Physical stamina took over from sheer skill in the soccer World Cup Friday as players from the surviving eight teams nursed injuries and fought to regain their strength after four matches in 13 days.

Holland, newest favorite to win the final July 7 in Munich, reported an injury-free team but East Germany, its opponent Sunday in the second match of the second round, said four players were unfit.

East German coach Georg Buschner said Eberhard Vogel, Siegmund Waetzlich, Joachim Fritzsche and Erich Hamann were all doubtful starters in the Group A match at Gelsenkirchen.

Buschner had other problems, too. "If I had a strategy against Johan Cruyff, I would not talk about it, but so far no team has been able to cut down Cruyff's area of movement so I do not know how we are going to do it," Buschner said.

Cruyff was optimistic Buschner would not find the formula, pointing out the East Germans were committed to attack if they wanted to stay in the competition after losing to Brazil. "This probably will give us room to play. I believe we have a fairly good chance against the East Germans," said the Dutch star.

At the head of Group B action, Poland prepared to meet Yugoslavia Sunday in Frankfurt. Coach Kazimierz Gorski said although he had no serious injuries "my team is beginning to get tired, to feel the strain of the tight schedule."

The Poles remained the only team with a perfect record after four matches but their fast-running style has proved a strength-sapping strategy which some experts believed would prevent them from clearing the ultimate hurdle before the final.

Baseball briefs

PHILADELPHIA—Pittsburgh has asked for the immediate reinstatement of outfielder Dave Parker to the active list and has made room for him by optioning Ed Ott to Charleston of the International League.

PHILADELPHIA—Steve Buchingham, former third baseman for Tulsa, has signed a contract with Philadelphia. Buckingham, hit .278 with six home runs for Tulsa last season.

Lacrosse has taken off like a rocket

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — World Team Tennis, with renowned stars such as Billie Jean King, Ken Rosewall, Evonne Goolagong, and Jimmy Connors is flourishing in some cities, while the comparatively strange game of box lacrosse has taken off like a rocket.

"It's the type of game lacrosse is," explains Jack Bionda, general manager of the Philadelphia Wings, one of the most successful of the six teams that comprise the new National Lacrosse League.

"Lacrosse is body contact, continuous action," Bionda says. "Lacrosse has been around since the 1800s, but nobody has bothered to exploit it. People are ready for something new."

Bionda says the Wings are averaging 10,000 fans a game. He admits that about 20 per cent of the house is free.

"We give a lot of tickets to the schools because we want the young people to see our game," Bionda declares. "We feel there is a great chance they'll come back as paying customers. That's what has happened."

Bionda estimates that the investors in the Wings have put up about $1 million. He says the team has sold $300,000 in tickets.

"The fans have taken to the game quickly and they understand the rules," Bionda said. "We have a 30 second clock like pro basketball's 24 second clock, and the fans watch it and shout, 'shoot, shoot, shoot.' They know when to boo and when to cheer."

A lot of people are skeptical about box lacrosse. They liken it to professional wrestling and the roller derby.

"That's a complete fallacy," says Bionda. "This isn't a show like wrestling, and I'm not knocking wrestling. When a guy in lacrosse gets mad he doesn't get mad deliberately. He doesn't go out and put on a show."

U.S. teens stun Russia in track

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — American teen-agers, showing surprising strength in the distance races, cracked four records Friday night in their head-to-head junior track and field meet with Russia but soured the evening with a monumental goof in the 440-yard relay.

However, a shocking handoff failure between Charles Hopkins and anchorman Clancy Edwards dampened what would have been a banner night for the American forces in this two-day meet. Hopkins, leading on the third leg by at least 15 yards, dropped the baton as he tried to hand it off to Edwards. The Russians finished first and America didn't even get second place points.

The U.S. was leading 81-69 at that point but finished the night with only a 92-85 bulge thanks to the goof.

California youngsters Richard Kimball and Ralph Serna finished 1-2 in the 5,000-meter run to shock the Soviets who figured to win that event.

Kimball is the California State high school mile and two-mile champ from Concord and Serna is a junior from Loara High in Anaheim.

Defending tee champ advances

PEBBLE BEACH (Special) — Defending champion Mike Brannan scored a 5 and 4 victory over Lee Mikles of Camarillo, and Curtis Worley of Coronado withstood a comeback effort by veteran Dick Runkle to win the other semifinal match Friday in the 63rd California Amateur Golf Championship.

Brannan, by winning today's 36-hole final over the par-72 6,815-yard Pebble Beach course, would become the tournament's first back-to-back winner since Frank Taylor of Ponomo accomplished the feat in 1954-55.

"You're losing your concentration when you start thinking about winning the tournament," Brannan said after ending his Friday match with a birdie on the 32nd hole of play.

The Worley-Runkle match ended minutes earlier, with the 18-year-old University of Houston golfer a 2 and 1 victor over the 46-year-old attorney from Los Angeles.

"I let it get too far away," said Runkle, who was six holes down with seven to play and then won four consecutive holes, including the par-four 15th with a birdie.

The match ended after Worley and Runkle hit the 16th and 17th. Runkle missed by just inches with long putts on both greens.

Worth $2.94 million CFL settles, 3-year pact

OTTAWA (AP) — Peace returned to the Canadian Football League Friday as players and management signed a three-year pact giving the players increased pay for playoff games and the Grey Cup championship.

"We came up and they came down," said Norm Kimball, head of the league management committee after roughly 12 hours of negotiations with the players.

"We think it is one of the best, if not the best, deals for athletes in North America," said George Reed, president of the CFL Players' Assn.

The contract was believed worth $2.94 million over three years.

Kimball said it was the agreement by the players to sign a three-year deal that turned the tide in the negotiations that threatened the start of the exhibition season as well as regular season play.

Only two days earlier, Kimball said the owners had "no more dollars" to offer the players. And Reed said that the players Birmingham franchise to stay in Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Birmingham Americans owner Bill Putnam, who said last week he might have to move the World Football League franchise to another city, said Friday the team had become financially secure and would remain here.

"Make it as strong as you like," Putnam said. "The Americans will definitely play in Birmingham in 1974."

A week ago Putnam appealed to local businessmen for collateral worth $1,250,000 in order to assure loans of up to $2 million for the club.

He said then if he was forced to look elsewhere for the money, it might be possible that the financiers would want the team moved to their hometown.

Putnam said the financial base is now secure and he intends to concentrate now on marketing an "exciting, entertaining" football team.

The Americans will open the season here July 10 against the Southern California Sun.

Collins out with broken collarbone

HARRISONBURG, Va. (AP) — Veteran wide receiver Gary Collins will be sidelined for about eight weeks while a fractured collarbone mends, officials of the Florida Blazers football team said Friday.

A spokesman for the World Football League entry said that Collins, a star for 10 years with the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, suffered the injury Thursday.

"He caught a pass over the middle and was tackled by cornerback Miller Farr," the spokesman said. "Collins was caught between Farr and the ground."

Collins, 33, came out of a two-year retirement to join the Blazers as a player-coach.

NFL veterans map plans for strike

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Alan Page, Minnesota Viking defensive tackle, says he and several fellow pro football players plan to stop rookies from reporting at the San Diego Chargers' camp on Tuesday.

"We'll do all we can legally to prevent them from going to camp," Page told a newsman, adding that friendly persuasion may be the best method when he and other veteran players show up at the California city.

The Chargers are the first National Football League scheduled to open training camp.

The National Football League Players Assn. is locked in a contract dispute with club owners. Page serves on the NFLPA Executive Committee, which also negotiates with the owners.

Page paused to give his views while bicycling in Friday's sunny weather. He sported a T-shirt with a fist and the NFLPA slogan, "No freedom, no football."

Hospital releases Hayes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State University football coach Woody Hayes was released from University Hospital Friday after being hospitalized since June 6 for a heart attack.

Hayes, 61, left the hospital for a recuperation expected to last about six weeks. He was not expected to perform any coaching duties until after that time.

Thursday Hayes talked with local newsmen. His jacket hung loosely and his sleeves came far down on his hands, indicating he had lost a considerable amount of weight since he suffered chest pains on June 5. He was admitted to the hospital the following day.

Hayes said he was "feeling great" and his doctors were "the coach and quarterback of the team." He said he would do what they instructed him to do.

Aside from the 15-minute Thursday interview with newsmen, the only visitor outside his family was comedian Bob Hope who talked with him Monday while he was here for a charity golf exhibition.

WFL owner: 'Storm is here to stay'

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Robert Harris of London, Ontario, Friday became the majority owner of the Portland Storm of the World Football League and immediately scotched any notions the team was headed for Canada by announcing it would remain here at least five years.

"The Portland Storm is here to stay," Harris told newsmen. He said he would sign a five-year lease with the city for the use of Civic Stadium in downtown Portland.

Harris purchased majority ownership of the franchise from Bruce Gelker, Santa Ana, Calif., a hotel man.

Harris said his hometown did not have a stadium and if he were to move the Portland team there it would take a complete renegotiation with the World Football League.

Davidson: 'Strike by rival NFL will hurt entire game'

HOUSTON (UPI) — The commissioner of the World Football League said Friday a strike by players of the rival National League will hurt the entire game.

"I feel that in the business we are in that a players' strike will hurt professional football and in the long run hurt the World Football League," Gary Davidson said. "Consequently we are not in favor of the strike."

"We would like to see them resolve their differences and play football," The NFL Players Assn. called the strike for next Monday and Davidson said several things they are seeking will be common soon.

"The contracts that we have known for professional athletes in the past are going to change drastically, and it is going to go into a more type of contract you have with entertainers, because professional sport really is entertainment," he said.

"I think the lack of mutuality—where one side can cancel a contract and the other side can't—I think that's going to change also."

Davidson, visiting the Houston Texans on a swing of all WFL teams before the opening season kickoff, said there will be no "Rozelle Rule" in the WFL—a limitation to keep a player whose contract has run out from jumping to another team.

Davidson said the WFL recruits want to build the league.

"I think from the superstar on down they are trying to help us out in the first year," Davidson said. "I think we will have that in the second year. But at some time the positions will kind of be a little more rigid."

"We are going to lean over backwards to avoid the dicotomy that developed between the players and owners in the NFL."

Despite only having a month of preseason training, Davidson said the WFL is more than ready.

"The people who I have talked to around the league say we're 20 to 25 per cent better than we thought we were going to be," he said.

"(Coach) Tom Fears says the team he has at Southern California is better than any team he ever had with the New Orleans Saints. He feels that on paper he could beat maybe four or five of the NFL teams right now."

Davidson, who promoted the upstart American Basketball Assn. and World Hockey Assn. before taking over the WFL, said this latest venture is more solid than his previous leagues.

"At this point we are further along than the ABA was or where the WHA was at the end of their first years as far as strength of owners. Also, we think our management is better; we've been baptized a few times," he said.

Albacore strike 9 miles off L.B.

Albacore are here! That electrifying news came from Newport Beach Friday afternoon when the skipper of the Legend, a private boat, radioed: "We are coming in with six albacore which we caught trolling feather jigs on the 60-Mile Bank."

Owner of the Legend is Gene Grimes and it was reported at Newport that he had been out four days trying to find albacore.

The 60-Mile Bank is 60 miles from San Diego, even though it lies nine miles from Long Beach. Jim Potter, operator of Long Beach Sportfishing Landing, was planning to get a boat into the area, probably Monday.

Meanwhile, more good news about the albacore came from the San Juan Seamount, which is further from San Diego but within reach of the larger boats.

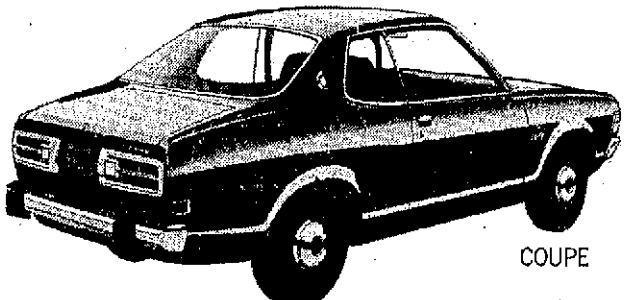

Commercial boats were reported loading up on albacore in that area. Just 24 hours earlier the albacore had been sighted within 150 miles of the California coast, all the way from San Diego to Morro Bay.

Average weight of the fish on the Legend ranged from 10 to 16 pounds.

Opening delayed for Ringo

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

The operator of the controversial game Ringo canceled plans to open his game booth on the Long Beach Pike Friday night after a judge refused his eleventh hour request for an order that would have blocked police from keeping a promise to shut the operation down.

C. Ransom Samuelson, attorney for Ringo operator C. Ray Shira, said late Friday afternoon that the game's tentative opening, scheduled for Friday night or noon today, probably would not take place for two or three weeks.

NO DECISION on the opening date was planned, he added, until a hearing has been held in Long Beach Superior Court on Shira's complaint — filed Friday afternoon — for a preliminary injunction against city officials and police.

Samuelson said City Atty. Leonard Putnam, who Friday argued against the issuance of the temporary restraining order, had agreed to "a short date" for the hearing, within about three weeks.

Samuelson and attorney Gary Carlin, who filed the complaint on behalf of Shira, appeared before Judge Roy Brown to seek the temporary order Friday afternoon.

The complaint alleges that the city had issued an amusement license to Shira so he could operate the bingo-like game in October, 1969. But that same month, the complaint charges, the council "annulled" the license.

THAT annulment was illegal, the complaint contends, adding that the plaintiff lost a subsequent court hearing on the issue but won an appeal in August, 1970.

With that victory in hand, states the complaint, the plaintiff won a court order commanding the city this month to reissue a license to the game, which was planned to operate from a 100-seat site at 130 W. Pike. That has been done, the document notes.

But, it alleges, "Since June 4 and at times since," defendants in the action have "publicly and privately uttered, announced, publicized and otherwise made known their design, threat and intention" to force the Ringo game to close as soon as it opened.

SHIRA charged last week that Long Beach Police Sgt. Robert Platt and Lt. Harry Welch, both of the administrative vice division, and City Prosecutor James Starr, came to the Ringo site expressly to tell him that.

The complaint seeks to block the arrest of anyone operating the Ringo game, to keep police or city officials from trespassing at the game site or interfering with the game or its customers, as well as from "making statements in public about the character of Ringo."

Fuel-purchase bill for gas dealers OK'd

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Franchised gasoline dealers would be allowed to look for other fuel supply sources if their franchisor is unable or refuses to supply them under a bill sent to the governor Friday.

Assemblyman Jack Fenton, D-Montebello, said the oil industry opposed the measure in hearings before legislative committees.

Fenton said he thought the bill was a good idea because it removed the possibility of franchisors cutting off supplies. He said the oil industry denied such situations were happening.

A 55-7 vote sent the bill to Gov. Reagan's desk. The vote approved Senate amendments to the Assembly passed-measure.

Bid to head off strike of carpenters collapses

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

The head of the Operating Engineers Union, which has already settled with Southern California building contractors, made an unsuccessful personal effort to head off an imminent strike by 40,000 union carpenters, it was learned Friday.

Joe Seymour, who has denounced the carpenters' pay demands as unreasonable and inflationary, spent an hour Friday with Paul Miller, head of the Carpenters Union but admitted that there was little likelihood that the strike would be called off before its scheduled start Monday.

SEYMOUR said the Southern California carpenters were locked into carpenter strikes in Northern California and San Diego County, and apparently there was no way to settle here without the concurrence of their counterparts in the other two areas.

One of the issues is a demand by the carpenters for a statewide master labor agreement, which the carpenters hope will lead to industry-wide bargaining on a statewide basis in future years.

On a more immediate level, say carpenter leaders, the statewide agreement would bind all contractor members of signatory employer associations to the same contract language everywhere in the state.

The key issue seems to be wages. In San Diego County and Northern California, the carpenters are seeking $1.75 an hour in extra wages and fringe benefits in addition to changes in contract language and various work rules. The San Diego carpenters are also seeking an additional 30 cents an hour the first year to offset an unfavorable federal Pay Board ruling last year, when wage and price controls were in effect.

SEYMOUR, whose own union settled for a "noninflationary" 6 per cent boost in pay and fringe benefits six months ago, has been extremely critical of the carpenters' demands, which total almost $2 an hour in Southern California. Initially they added up to more than $3.

Despite his criticism, Seymour said he thought the contractors would raise their offer to 65 cents an hour over three successive years if the carpenters will lower their demands.

The Operating Engineers' chief also spoke to management officials Friday and told them they could legitimately go beyond the 6 per cent limit they'd pledged themselves to, as they'd already signed with the Teamsters Union Thursday for something over 6 per cent.

THE carpenters' Miller made it evident, though, that his own union had gone beyond the point of no return in its preparations for Monday's strike.

Once the strike gets started, said Seymour, it's going to be hard to end quickly. Not only do strikes have a momentum of their own, but, as Seymour noted, the carpenters timed the walkout to coincide with the collection of their vacation pay. The vacation money will probably give the carpenters something like a month's cushion, he said.

Con who worked all angles finally flees

SAN QUENTIN (UPI)—A convicted wife killer who has attempted jailbreaks using everything from fake paper pistols to false IDs has finally succeeded, San Quentin Prison officials conceded Friday.

Neil Edward Darrow, 30, whose past efforts always failed, somehow got outside the walls of this grim bastion on San Francisco Bay about two weeks ago, officials said.

"He probably made it out during an exercise period between checks," said Bill Nyberg, public information officer at the Prison. "He just kept trying until he made it."

Nobody knows how Darrow slipped away about two weeks ago. For several days officials thought he was hiding inside the big complex.

"I don't know how he got out, but I know he made it outside the walls," said Nyberg. "I can't say how I know."

Darrow, convicted of killing his wife, Margaret, last year in Sacramento, was last seen June 12 during a check of the maximum custody row where the inveterate escape-plotter was being kept.

During his Sacramento trial, Darrow, a jewelry maker, pulled a "gun" in a courtroom and waved it at the judge, who dived under his desk. But a bailiff fired a shot and Darrow surrendered. The "gun" was a magazine cover stained with shoe polish.

In a second escape attempt in Sacramento, Darrow overpowered a guard at the county jail and fled to the roof before gunfire forced him to give up.

Later, at the state prison at Vacaville where he was beginning a life sentence for murder, he used the identification card of a trusty working outside the prison fence to make an escape that last only a few hours.

Pair freed in selling of cancer drug

STOCKTON (AP)—Criminal charges against a man and his wife accused of selling the drug Laetrile have been dismissed.

Municipal Court Judge William R. Griffen freed Myron Knoetfle, 36, an electronics salesman, and his wife, Elaine, 33, after ruling that the couple had been unfairly entrapped by law-enforcement officers.

Supporters of Laetrile say it is an anticancer drug, but federal health officials assert it is not.

Knoetfle was charged with the sale of the banned drug, produced from apricot pits, to an undercover agent for the State Health Department's Food and Drug Division.

The agent told the couple that she had terminal cancer and couldn't afford to go to a Berkeley doctor the Knoetfles had recommended.

The Knoetfles sold her the drug and were arrested.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

There is no mystique involved in pruning shrubs. One doesn't have to go to a garden class to learn how if he first remembers when a shrub needs to be pruned, and how to go about it.

Most subtropical or deciduous shrubs bloom only a few weeks of the year. A group of fewer blooming shrubs are pruned differently.

Deciduous shrubs are pruned to shape when flowers are cut, or when through blooming. Subtropical flowering shrubs likewise are pruned to shape when the blossoms are cut for use indoors, then the pruning is completed when through blooming.

Here's the important pruning technique... first study the shrub and determine the shape desired. When cutting a branch off to desired height, gardeners must always cut just above a leaf, a leafless bud, or just above a secondary branch, or branches that will remain. Final pruning involves cutting out one of two crossing branches, the cutting off dead twiggy growth. Presto! — the good pruning is done. Such pruning helps the shrub to growing an attractive shapely form, followed by lovely blossoms next year.

ANTS busily scurrying up and down plants indicate there are pests on the plant. The ants like the residue the pests cast off. It probably is a delectable source of food for them. It isn't the ants that bring the pests into the garden. It is the pests that attract the ants.

A successful business man who dabbled at gardening thought he had a bright idea to get rid of ants that were merrily running up and down his eugenia tree. He dipped a string in gasoline, quickly tied the wet string around the tree trunk then lit it! The ants temporarily disappeared, later they were back again. He couldn't understand why they were so interested in that tree. Finally, he had a professional gardener climb up the ladder to investigate the ant problem. He found scale had infested the tree and their excreta attracted the insects.

The tree was sprayed with a recommended scale control insecticide, and several days later the ants disappeared. The source of food was destroyed, hence no ants.

That's why it is important for the gardener to find out what is the source of attraction on the plants. Determine which type of insects are on it, then use the right insecticide to spray the plant.

THERE are two types of insecticide sprays for pest control. One is for sap-sucking insects, of which there are two types of sprays. The one for sap-sucking scale control is an oil base spray which cannot be used on all kinds of plants. The oil base spray softens the hard scale shell, seeps under the shell and kills the scale and any possible young, too.

The other type of insecticide spray is a lighter base chemical material for other sap-sucking insects, that can be used on numerous other plants.

The milder spray controls certain pests by the caustic action and damages the bodies, or clogs the breathing apparatus of the insects. The second insecticide spray is for leaf-or-flower-chewing worms or chewing beetles. The residue of the stomach-type spray kills these pests.

Gardener needn't wonder which type of spray to use. All he needs to know is... a horticultural oil spray for scale, and different one for sap-sucking insects and a second kind for chewing pests.

LET'S get back to the ants for a different problem... that of keeping the ants from invading the house, specifically the kitchen area. Gardener would be wise to spray around the base of the house at the soil line of the kitchen area.

This should be done three or four times a month to six week intervals throughout late spring into fall when the ants are most active. The other suggestion is to spray the ant nests. There are several household aerosol sprays one can use. Or gardener can use a recommended stomach spray that is mixed with water.

Garden Jobs

PLANT bedding begonias for summer and fall color in a shade garden.

PRUNE azalea plants that have finished blooming wherever you think they should be shaped. Simply cut where you want to. Shortly there'll be four or more new branch growths just below the cut.

THE ACCURATE WAY to know which of two competitive turf fertilizers to use, that cover a same given area and cost about the same, is to add the fertilizer and trace minerals percentages of each. Multiply the weight of the sack times the total active materials in the sack.

Place the decimal point two figures from right to left and you arrive at pounds of the materials in the sack and not the percentages. Repeat the same process with the other competitive product. You'll get the answer fast, and you'll get the product that furnishes the most goodies.

Don't take anyone's word for it. Check it out yourself. The reason for doing the multiplication comparisons is obvious. A lighter sack will have a higher percentage, but not as much live-weight materials and the other sack have more live weight and less percentage!

Controlling pests grandmother's way

Ridder News Service

Grandmothers by tradition are expert gardeners, no matter if they are contemporary or gardened generations ago.

There is quite a difference in how they went about it, particularly in the control of pests. There was no chlordane, malathion, sevin, or snail and slug baits to buy at the store for the grandmothers two generations removed. They had to use simple materials on hand in the average household.

My grandmother came from the "old country," which meant that she had a lot of savvy not generally in circulation locally. She was also a farm wife, which is like adding a Ph.D. to a normal widely education.

HER gardening efforts were generally regarded by the male household as being puny compared with the real problems of raising stuff on a big scale to market for money. Nevertheless, at meal times they were happy to share in the results of her efforts in the vegetable and fruit gardens. Some of her "home remedies" for stalling the inroads of insects seem peculiar today, but served grandma well. Here are a few examples:

For ants in the house, she dampened a sponge and sprinkled it with sugar, placed carefully in the ants' path. As soon as the sponge was crawling with the little varmints, it was dunked in a pot of boiling water. This action was repeated until the ants gave up.

In the garden a different approach was used. Some carbolic acid was put in a sprinkling can with water and poured into the hole where ants emerged. If this didn't discourage the ants, the nest was dug up and a solution of aloes and powdered camphor was mixed in the sprinkling can and doused on the eggs and ants together.

Most farms had livestock which automatically produced successive crops of flies. To get rid of them in the house, pyrethrum powder was poured into the air intake of the fireplace bellows and blown about the house.

Another method was to soak a piece of flannel in turpentine and place it on a dish in the fly-infested room. Of course flypaper was available then—more effective and smelled better. It was also an indispensable item for comedy situations in old-time movies.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

JULY 1 - 7, 1974

Warm and hazy makes one lazy.

Beware of lightning this week... Cap'n Kidd departed July 6, 1699... Full Buck Moon, July 4... The year's half gone... Average length of days for week, 15 hours, 15 minutes... Frogs are adults now and pursue romance... Salvation Army founded by William Booth, July 5, 1865... Maiden voyage of SS United States, July 3, 1952... Lee lost Gettysburg, July 3, 1863... Pacific cable arrived Honolulu, July 3, 1903... Many a man's tongue has broken his nose. Old Farmer's Riddle: Why is a gun like a jury? (Answer below.)

Ask the Old Farmer: What is the origin of the word doughnut? I have heard they were first made with a hole so a captain could hang them from the spokes of his vessel. D. E. Nashua, N.H.

Wrong. The original doughnut was called "dough-knol" because women rolled the dough into a slender, rope-like length and twisted the ends together to form a ring.

Home Hint: A cup mounted upright near the kitchen sink is handy for holding rimps or bracelets while you're preparing food or washing dishes... Riddle answer: It goes off when discharged.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Light rain and very warm most of week.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Cloudy and hot to start, then rain and cooler to end of week.

Middle Atlantic Coast: Mostly clear and hot at first, then rain; clearing at week's end.

Southeast Coastal-Piedmont: Coastal rain to start, then showers inland; some clearing and hot latter part.

Florida: Rain at first, then partly cloudy in north and central; rain all week in south.

Upstate & Western N.Y.-Toronto & Montreal: Most of week sunny and warm; early week showers in Montreal and heavy rain midweek in east.

Greater Ohio Valley: Week begins hot with rain in east and clouds in west; end of week hot with continuing rain in east.

Deep South: Rain and cool all week; rain heavy along Gulf at midweek.

Chicago and Southern Great Lakes: Most of week hot and muggy; some rain at midweek.

Northern Great Plains-Great Lakes: Rain for first part of week; end of week partly sunny and hot.

Central Great Plains: Rain to start, then hot and sunny at week's end.

Texas-Oklahoma: Week begins partly sunny, then rain, heavy at times; to end of week.

Rocky Mountain Region: Early week fair and hot; end of week rainy in north and east.

Southwest Desert: Most of week clear with highs in upper 100s; partly cloudy on weekend.

Pacific Northwest: Drizzly in north and light rain in south for most of week; partial clearing and warm on weekend.

California: Cloudy all week in south; clear to start in north, then cloudy and showery.
